Nathan Straus, a Good Man
Another Fatality
Mrs. Patterson Gathers News
A Farmer's Charter

By Arthur Brisbane

THE DEATH of Nathan Straus on Sunday in New York, three weeks before the completion of his 83d year, is a great loss to this country.

Mr. Straus set an example of wise philanthropy, devoting more than a quarter of a century of his active working years, and a substantial fortune to his fight for pure milk throughout the United States. As an example to others he distributed pasteurized milk including milk properly modified for young infants in the poor districts of New York.

His influence is felt in foreign countries as well as here. Because of his work pasteurization of milk and careful handling and bottling are now enforced by law, and, thanks to Mr. Straus, the death rate among infants in New York has been cut down 50 per cent.

Mr. Straus was one of three brothers, all distinguished for good citizenship and public spirit.

His brother Isador, whose heroic death on the Titanic will be long remembered, represented his state in Congress, and was one of the three greatest merchants produced by the United States thus far. A monument in New York city was erected in his honor. Oscar Straus, the youngest brother, represented this country as ambassador to Turkey at Constantinople, and was in the cabinet of Theodore Roosevelt.

Nathan Straus, who died on Sunday morning, literally saved the lives of millions of children. His memory will be enshrined in the hearts of mothers all over the world.

It is feared that Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieut. William A. MacLaren have been lost on their flight to Europe via the Azores. Ships yesterday reported rough seas, high winds, no possibility of surviving a landing for more than a few minutes.

The practical certainty that two more fliers have gone into eternity makes you wonder how things are arranged in the next world. Are the inhabitants segregated in groups for the conversations of the last thousands of billions of years, the great conquerors here with three always in front, Alexander, Caesar and Napoleon, the great writers there, Homer, Dante, Shakespeare dominating, the great philosophers yonder, Socrates, Plato, Aristotle and perhaps Bacon, with groups around Archimedes, Michaelangelo, and Darwin, men without peers, or are they all scattered, Dante perhaps next to a Baptist from New Jersey, and Darwin beside a fundamentalist from Tennessee, all eternity in which to convert him?

How many of us feel that we deserve but lack the world's appreciation? Mr. A. Capone, known to his friends as "Scarface," because of an unfortunate early incident, has that feeling.

Mrs. Elsa Maxwell Patterson, granddaughter of the late Joseph Medill, an editor of the Washington Herald, tells you about it.

Being in Miami, where Mr. Capone maintains a winter residence, and knowing that he should seek information at the sources, she called on the distinguished Chicago citizen, who says Mrs. Patterson, "stood by his gate, with six athletic energetic looking young men, walking about not far from him." The fact that many have threatened to kill Capone, although not to his face, makes him interesting.

When Mrs. Patterson said: "I am Joe Patterson's sister," Mr. Capone said: "Come right in and sit down."

To tell a Chicagoan that you are Joe Patterson's sister is like telling a Parisian that you are the sister of the Eiffel Tower.

Mr. Capone led the way to his beautiful residence, the six athletic young men keeping, unobtrusively, close by.

Even ladies have been known to shoot, although the distinguished young editor of the Washington Herald had no shooting thoughts. She was interested in studying a man of power.

And, says Mrs. Patterson:

"Capone has great power. His hair is extraordinarily powerful. The muscles stand out under his tightly fitting clothes. He is only 32 years of age. His neck seems strong enough to hold the weight of ten such heads," pointing to a photograph of the marvellous equestrian statue of Colleoni, the great [illegible] Venetian Condottiero) "he has a face as powerful as that. I should not wonder if he were to become back again, transferred by fate from Northern Italy to the shores of Lake Michigan.

"His eyes are two narrow slits, pale gray, and when he complains of harsh treatment undeserved, there is a look in them that might change the minds of those who talk about putting Capone on the spot. I

TRADE WIND DOWN IN SEA, SAYS RADIO

Hart-MacLaren Plane Down 20 Miles From Azores; Shipping Warned

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Mackay Radio Company announced receipt of a message today from the liner President Garfield saying the San Miguel radio station in the Azores had broadcast the following:

"Understand airplane Trade Wind fell in sea about 20 miles off Meiaires Point, St. Michael's Island. All ships advised to keep sharp lookout and report this station if anything seen."

The island of St. Michael (Sao Miguel) is nearer to the Portuguese coast than any of the other large islands forming the Azores group. It is about 800 miles from Portugal and about 150 miles east of the Island of Fayal, the expected destination of the Trade Wind.

If the airplane came down in the sea near St. Michael's, it would indicate its pilots overshot their goal.

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—A $350,000 suit brought against Gene Tunney by Max (Boo-Boo) Hoff of Philadelphia was discontinued today at Hoff's request. Tunney's personal counsel, George W. Whiteside said of it:

"The discontinuance was not the result of any settlement. No money was paid to Mr. Hoff and no negotiations were had with him. The discontinuance does not surprise me, however, as I have known from the outset Gene Tunney owed Mr. Hoff nothing."

St. Louis, Jan. 13 (AP)—Recuperation will be fortunate if it does not make a too rapid recovery from the business slump, Col. C. B. Robbins, president of an organization of life insurance companies, said today.

'Al' Smith Demands G. O. P. Beg Pardon for Lucas' Acts

Washington, Jan. 13 (INS)—Apology and explanation from the Republican National Committee was demanded by Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York, for dissemination by Robert H. Lucas of the notorious barroom campaign in a letter put in the record of the Nye senatorial campaign committee today.

The cartoon bore the caption "Al Smith-Raskob Ideas of Happiness" and 800,000 copies were distributed secretly by Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee, against Senator George W. Norris in Nebraska and in other states where there was a wet and dry issue.

Denying a quotation on which the cartoon was based, Smith wrote to Senator Wagner (D) New York, and asked that his protest be made part of the committee record.

The disclosure regarding Lucas' use of the cartoon was made during the committee's investigation of the anti-Norris Nebraska campaign.

In his letter Smith said:

"Since on the face of the testimony, this cartoon was distributed in these various states by the extent of 800,000 copies, I think that an apology and reparation is due me from the Republican National Committee which permitted its director to do this and that I am entitled to have 800,000 copies of a statement showing that I was falsely quoted, distributed just as widely as the original cartoon was and by the same organization."

23 FLEE FIRE IN DORCHESTER

Twenty-three persons, including a young mother and her three-weeks-old infant, were driven from the three-story apartment building at 17 Pond st., Dorchester, early today by a fire that caused $1000 damage to the structure.

The mother, Mrs. James Leonard, wife of Patrolman Leonard of the Dorset st. station, was carried out, with her infant, by Ralph Goodwin, a next-door neighbor.

Robert Clark, a lodger on the third floor, claimed the unique experience of starting the fire in attempting to learn the time.

HE GIVES ALARM, TOO.

He lighted a match, he said, to look at his watch, and the flaming match dropped from his fingers to the pillow slip.

Leaping from bed he opened a door leading to a veranda, intending to hurl the burning pillow out. The resulting draft, however fanned the flames and set the entire bed afire.

Clark's cries for aid were heard by Patrolman Leonard on the second floor. He telephoned an alarm and then raced upstairs where he battled the flames.

CHILDREN CARRIED OUT.

Mrs. Mary McDonald and her three children, on the third floor, were assisted to the street by Lieut. Norman Doyle and Hoseman P. F. Cronin of the fire department.

The McDonald children are: Mary Ann, 14; Margaret, 11, and Joseph, nine.

Goodwin carried Mrs. Leonard and her infant out, while the other four Leonard children—Anna, 13; James, 11; Mary, eight, and Edward, five—were assisted out by other neighbors.

On the first floor live Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Szczuli and their eight children. Szczuli is owner of the building.

Ousted Middies May Be Returned to Academy

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Naval academy officials declined today to "take the responsibility" for reinstating the two midshipmen who were dismissed last year for taking two girls into the mess hall at Annapolis.

Rear Admiral S. S. Robison, superintendent and Capt. C. P. Snyder, commandant, of the academy, testifying before a Senate naval affairs sub-committee defended the discipline they had meted out to Midshipmen M. S. Burgin, of Jacksonville, Fla., and L. L. Myatt, of Wollaston, Mass.

DISCIPLINE DISCUSSED.

The two officers discussed the disciplinary order with the committee at length in the presence of the two former students.

Following the session, which was held behind closed doors, Senator Walsh, Democrat, Mass., said he expected the sub-committee to make a favorable report on his resolution to reinstate the two.

He said questions by members of the committee indicated they thought the discipline was "a little too severe" in view of the dismissal by the midshipmen students that the incident was merely a "prank."

TO ACT ON RESOLUTION.

Chairman Goldsborough said he would call another meeting of the committee some time this week to act on the Walsh resolution.

Senator Walsh said members of the committee asked the academy officials today if they would voluntarily reinstate the two former students, but Robison and Snyder had said they would rather not assume the responsibility.

The two boys were dismissed after they had taken two girls into the mess hall at the Naval Academy dressed as midshipmen.

HOTEL OWNER DECLARES HE SOUGHT 'NO PROTECTION'

Former Ritz Proprietor Says Grand Jury Testimony in the Garrett Case Was "True"

Complete testimony in Garrett case on page 12. Get each day's complete testimony in the 7 p. m. edition of the Evening American.

John F. Sullivan, Hotel Ritz proprietor, paid Sergeant Timmins $25 a month for six months and Officer Arthur Tiernan $20 for three or four years, but as "tips," not bribes, he testified at the Garrett trial today.

He had no agreement with them and expected no protection from them he said.

Thisteatimony was the same as he gave before the Suffolk County grand jury last June; it was read in court and he declared it to be true. His grand jury testimony never before had been made public.

There were several other highlights at the continued trial of Oliver B. Garrett, ex-police raider, his wife and Miss Lillian V. Hatch, who are charged with conspiracy to extort from Sullivan.

Judge Patrick M. Keating denied a motion by Daniel J. Gallagher, defense attorney, to strike from the records Sullivan's testimony that Miss Hatch, who ran the Ritz coatroom, was getting $300 or $400 a week from the girls at the hotel.

Sullivan denied that in giving such testimony he designed to "blacken" Miss Hatch in the jury's eyes and persisted his only motive was to tell the truth.

"GOLDEN EGGS"

He could not recall who told him that Miss Hatch boasted Garrett would close the hotel if he interfered with conditions in the rathskeller but he said he was not afraid Garrett would close the place.

When Gallagher, continuing cross examination, asked why Garrett, if he was receiving what Sullivan claims he paid, should "kill the goose that lays the golden eggs," by closing the hotel, Sullivan said,

"Well, I wasn't taking any chances."

He said Garrett had absolute control of the Ritz and that he (Sullivan) was the hired boy, but when Gallagher elaborated upon the question he said he did not mean he was the hired boy working for Garrett.

The hotel man admitted under close questioning that he had not told the whole truth at Atty. Gen. Warner's investigation, that he had suppressed part of the truth.

He did not, as requested yesterday, bring to court today any of the Hotel Ritz records or bankbooks. He said he was unable to find them. When asked by Gallagher if he had made a thorough search, he replied,

"I didn't stay up all night."

He said he was unwilling that Lowell Mayberry and Lafayette Chamberlain, his former counsel, should testify at the trial regarding any conversations he may have had with them about Garrett.

SULLIVAN DECLARES HE ONLY GAVE 'TIPS' TO POLICEMEN

and third under cross-examination began a few minutes before 10 o'clock. It was preceded by a conference of counsel with Judge Keating that lasted more than 20 minutes.

Garrett wore a blue shirt and garnet red tie. Mrs. Garrett, in a blue dress, sat beside the prisoner's desk and talked with her husband. Miss Hatch was on her other side.

Garrett had a smile for his father and step-mother, and Mrs. Garrett a nod and smile for a woman friend.

At the outset Gallagher called Sullivan's attention to his testimony of yesterday that he gave Sergt. Timmins $25 a month and Officer Tiernan $20 a month. This testimony, Sullivan believed, was substantially the same as he gave at the Warner hearing.

Gallagher then read from Sullivan's testimony before the grand jury on June 3, 1930, a statement that he made no arrangements with Timmins and Tiernan, but "simply gave them the money." He had been recalled by Dist. Atty. Foley at the request of certain jurors.

His testimony before the grand jury was true, Sullivan said.

Gallagher started to read from the records a question by a juror, and another 20-minute conference resulted.

Gallagher then read a question a grand juror put to Sullivan. It was:

"Was the money you paid for protection or anything?"

Sullivan's answer was read:

"No, I just simply gave them the money."

At the request of Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle Judge Keating instructed the jury that this testimony was relative only to Timmins and Tiernan.

Sullivan then testified that he had truthfully answered the juror's question.

Gallagher then read where Sullivan had testified before the grand jury that the money was taken from the hotel and that he thought entries of the payments were made on the Ritz books as tips. Sullivan could not at first recall about the tips, but did so when shown the testimony.

DENIES "BRIBES"

Gallagher then read where Sullivan told the grand jury that no names had appeared in the books and where he had been asked:

"What was the idea of giving each of these officers money if it wasn't for protection? Were you making so much money that you didn't have to bank it?"

Sullivan's reply, as read, was:

"It's a common occurence to give somebody a tip," Sullivan had told the jury and had been asked:

"Do you know there is a penalty on your part for bribing an officer?"

His answer, as read by Gallagher from records, had been: "I didn't bribe him. I gave him a tip," and he had told the jury he expected no protection.

Sullivan Denies Effort to 'Blacken' Miss Hatch's Name

Reading from the records, which he had marked in evidence, Gallagher showed that Sullivan told the grand jury he gave Arthur Tiernan $20 for three or four years and gave Timmins $20 a month for six months, that he gave no other officers money.

Gallagher said he sought to show the inconsistencies of Sullivan's testimony before the grand jury and his testimony at the present trial. Once Gallagher said Sullivan had admitted his statement before the grand jury was false and Sullivan said that was not so, that he had misunderstood the question.

Gallagher asked whether Sullivan was willing to have Lowell Mayberry and Lafayette Chamberlain testify at the trial regarding conversations about Garrett with Sullivan.

WAS "HIRED BOY"

"I am not," Sullivan said.

"I answered that before."

He said he understood that Chamberlain, not Mayberry, was his attorney in the matter.

In answer to several questions, Sullivan said he could remember distinctly and clearly and vividly that every time he handed Miss Hatch an envelope she opened it, took out the money and put it in her waist.

"Well," said Gallagher, his voice raised, "when you told this jury that Miss Hatch was running these girls and making $300 or $400 a week in your hotel, you designed to blacken this woman in the eyes of the jury, did you not?"

"I did not," Sullivan replied.

He denied that he wanted to snitch and smear her all over so she would be discredited when she took the witness stand.

Gallagher demanded what other motive he had and Sullivan said he was telling the truth. Gallagher pressed the same question and Judge Keating ruled Sullivan had replied.

Court ruled that a question whether Sullivan thought the story that Miss Hatch would not appear in the newspapers was immaterial.

Garrett, Sullivan said, had absolute control of the Ritz and when Gallagher asked: "And you were the hired boy?" he answered: "Yes."

When Gallagher amplified the question, pointing out the extensive investment at the hotel and the employes and added:

"You were the hired boy working for Garrett; is that what you mean?" Sullivan replied in the negative.

Miss Hatch, he said, boasted that if he interfered in the Ratskeller Garrett would "close the place up," but he didn't know of anybody who heard her say that. He thought tonight, of one of the most elaborate parties ever staged in Britain, Victor Emanuel, young American millionaire race horse owner, will be the host, and he will give the cream of the social aristocracy of England an idea of what a really lavish American party can approach.

The guests will number over a thousand. For their amusement the New York cabaret turn, the "Yacht Club Boys," are making a lightning trip to Europe and will return on the Europa on January 21. Their services for the evening will be rewarded by $8000. The American dancers, Moss and Fontana, also have been specially retained and a number of guests are traveling from America at Emanuel's expense. The cream of London vaudeville talent will be in evidence.

TOOK "NO CHANCES"

Gallagher then made his motion to have Sullivan's testimony regarding Miss Hatch getting money from the girls stricken out on the grounds that it was all hearsay. Judge Keating allowed it to stand and exceptions were noted.

Sullivan then testified that the first time he told of the boast he claims Miss Hatch made was during the present trial. He said nothing to Garrett about it, he said.

"Why not?"

Witness Afraid His Hotel Would Be Closed by Raider

Asked Gallagher: "Do you suppose Garrett would have closed up such a juicy bonanza if you were giving him all that money and liquor you said you gave him? Do you think he would kill that goose that was laying the golden eggs?"

"Well, I wasn't taking any chances," said Sullivan.

When Sullivan said he had been trying to sell the Ritz property Gallagher demanded to know why he had not told the attorney-general "the things you are telling us now."

DIDN'T TELL ALL

Sullivan said the Attorney-General "didn't ask."

He then admitted he had not told the Attorney-General the whole truth, that he had suppressed part of the truth.

"Well, having sworn to tell the whole truth, why didn't you?" Gallagher demanded.

Sullivan said he didn't know, but denied he had "invented it for the malicious purpose of blackening that woman (Miss Hatch)."

Gallagher then reverted to the way Sullivan says Garrett and his raiders took $4500 worth of liquor from the Ritz after Mrs. Garrett had tipped him the raiders were on their way. Sullivan could not recall that his defense in court was that the liquor had been put into the rooms at the hotel by men named Scott and Ryan, who registered there.

A lively exchange between counsel ensued when Doyle said Herbert F. Callahan, Garrett's lawyer, should know whether Sullivan had been discharged in court. Callahan demanded why he should know and Doyle said:

"You defended him."

'DOUBLE-CROSSED'

Callahan denied it and the prosecutor retracted his statement.

Sullivan then testified he used to keep liquor in a lodging house next the Ritz. He said it kept it in a storeroom in Charlie's restaurant near the hotel's rear door, he said.

Gallagher then pressed for the reason that Sullivan had called Garrett back after an unfruitful search had been made and told him where liquor was hidden.

Sullivan finally answered:

"I don't know. That was when he double-crossed me."

"A minimum of $10,000,000 is needed to prevent untold suffering and actual starvation by thousands of families. Pollution of water supply caused by dying cattle has been added to winter hardships in some sections. We are confident your people will not fail to meet their share of this humanitarian need. We must not fail."

Boston's quota in the nationwide campaign for $10,000,000 for drouth relief will be $300,000 according to announcement today by James Jackson, chairman of the Boston chapter of the Red Cross.

He is organizing a committee of 50 local men and women to take charge of the Boston campaign, full details of which will be announced in a short time.

Noted Doctors Die in Love Tragedy

Dr. Maria shot Dr. Mayer and himself.

Attendants at the public nurses' school, where the shooting took place, asserted the two had been in love. They advanced the theory that, separated by Dr. De Maria's marriage to another woman, they had determined to die together. The woman was 35 and unmarried.

Robinson Scores Acts of Brossard

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, declared in the Senate today the "discipute" which came to the former tariff commission and necessitated its reorganization was "attributable in part at least to the acts" of Edgar B. Brossard, Republican member from Utah.

The Democratic chieftain criticized Brossard's connection with the sugar tariff. Republican leaders claimed Brossard would be confirmed, but looked for a close vote.

BOSTON PARADE OF JOBLESS IS BANNED

Street Commissioner Refuses to Give a Permit for Big Demonstration Here

The unemployed will not be permitted to parade through the streets of Boston, Thomas J. Hurley, chairman of the Boston Street Commission, announced.

Hurley declined to issue a permit requested by Samuel Winn of the Boston Committee of Unemployed for a parade of the jobless from 22 Garrison ave. to City Hall next Monday afternoon.

Winn informed Hurley that the unemployed desired to march in a group to the City Council chamber and there demand that the councilors take steps to relieve suffering among those thrown out of work as a result of business depression.

"Such permits will not be issued by the street commission," Hurley said, "we cannot permit such parades through the streets of downtown Boston during business hours."

He also stated that another group if unemployed, who make their headquarters in Appleton st., South End, had indicated that they planned a march on City Hall. Should a permit for such a parade be requested it will be refused, he said.

Mrs. Patterson should write at length of her interesting visit to the most powerful man in a great new industry.

It would be as interesting as an authentic description of a talk with the minotaur. Capone was born in New York, by the way. When Mrs. Patterson said, pointing to an airplane high up: "Are you not afraid they might drop a bomb," Capone (who pronounces it "like corn pone") shrugged his wide shoulders and answered, "well, one way or another."

Farmers of Saskatchewan have formulated a "charter of liberty." They threaten "a cooperative commonwealth within the British Empire." That has a Russian sound.

They demand a basic price for wheat to cover the cost of production, retroactive to the first of last August. That sounds like Uncle Sam.

They would abolish grain exchanges and all speculation in farm products. And they would have the government crop insurance, "guaranteeing all farmers' production against all natural risks." That sounds like Heaven.

Also the farmers ask an arrangement that would regulate the cost of things bought by farmers to fit the selling price of commodities that he produces.

Yesterday Detroit, after a period of hibernation, showed signs of life at full speed. Tens of thousands of additional men went to work. Seventy-five thousand started at the Ford River Rouge plant.

Chevrolet promises 30,000 steady jobs through the winter. Dodge, Hudson, Lincoln, Buick, Cadillac and Chrysler are all increasing inventory.

Somebody reached "the spot" yesterday. James Belgantine, known to Chicago as "the pineapple king," will manufacture no more explosive bombs. An ice stepped from his automobile's five bullets entered his head and body. The hospital says he may live. Such men have great vitality.

Dr. Williams, editor of mental hygiene, says very truly, that those that practice or contemplate trial marriage "lack sincerity and faith in each other."

The girl in the partnership may be sure of one thing, namely, that the man thinks little of her.

If his opinion of her were what it should be he would want to marry and found a home, with no trial, no doubts and no misgivings.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment declares through Mr. Curtis, its president, that 24 states now favor the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and 12 more will be ready for repeal within two years.

That prediction is a mirage worthy to stand beside the Saskatchewan liberty charter. Thirty-six states will not in the lifetime of anyone living vote to repeal the prohibition amendment.

Only a revolution, which we shall not have, would take that out of the Constitution. But, ingenious words and ingenious lawyers could remove the mainspring from the Volstead act and then the Eighteenth Amendment would become as "harmless" as the one guaranteeing political rights regardless of color.

Gov. Roosevelt's Hobby Is Collecting Ship Models

Englewood, N. J., Jan. 13—Light on a frustrated youthful ambition comes from the wife of the Governor of New York. He has a large collection of ship models, compasses and other things nautical.

One might suppose it was due to the fact that he once was Assistant Secretary of the Navy, but Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt told the Englewood Woman's Club that when 18 years old he wanted to join the navy, but couldn't.

Cold Epidemic Muffles Voices of Opera Stars

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—An epidemic of colds has muffled the voices of the Metropolitan Opera House.

Giulio Gatti-Casazza, the general manager, seven stars, a stage director and ten choristers either are ill or are convalescing from throat ailments. This added to the broken leg of Frederick Jagel, American tenor, has necessitated daily replacements averaging 21.

The second shift in programs this season occurred last night when Gounod's "Faust" was sung for the fourth time in place of his "Romeo et Juliette," due to the illness of Lucrezia Bori and Edward Johnson.

TINKHAM RAPS BILL GIVING DRY FORCE 500 MORE AGENTS

$160,000 FOR 'STOOLS' IS REVEALED

$11,000,000 for Enforcement in $135,739,688 Federal Supply Measure

Washington, Jan. 13.—Riding roughshod over opposition in its ranks, the House Appropriations Committee today approved a 33 per cent expansion of the federal dry enforcement regime by addition of 500 agents and 188 other employes.

The prohibition enforcement fund, embraced in the annual supply bill for the state, justice, commerce and labor departments, totalled $11,369,500 as compared to $8,900,000 last year.

Hearings made public in connection with the bill disclosed that both Atty.-Gen. Mitchell and Prohibition Director Woodcock were subjected to grillings by Rep. Tinkham (R) of Massachusetts and other wet committee members.

BARES EXPENSE FUND

Woodcock was forced to disclose details of a $250,000 fund for purchase of liquor, food and similar expenses of agents seeking evidence, and $180,500 chiefly for informers or 'stool pigeons.'

In regard to the new agents Representative Tinkham said:

"The 500 additional enforcement officers provided for in the bill will add a new measure to the corruption, lawlessness and perjury now generally connected with the enforcement of prohibition, and must increase the present resentment of and contempt for law ann government and the disrespect of the administration of justice in the United States."

The report and hearings showed:

1—Dry agents spent $31,849 from July 1 to Oct. 31 in purchase of liquor to obtain evidence, or at a rate of about $120,000 a year. Woodcock said he hoped to discontinue this as agents become better trained.

2—During the same period $36,— was paid to special employes, popularly called "stool pigeons." Woodcock said he was willing to discontinue this, but the committee voted for continuance of the practice. The bill carried $2000 for office supplies for undercover work when special offices were set up.

3—Atty.-Gen. Mitchell declined to express an opinion on the merits of prohibition, but said he would enforce, not "scuttle," the law.

4—Mitchell said the government is carrying itself to prosecuting commercial violators and Woodcock said the government will not disturb "wet" violators.

5—Prosecution of persons for making homebrew is not impossible, but difficult, according to Woodcock.

6—Woodcock denied agents were "spying" on Congress. Mitchell said one bureau was trying to "dry up" the national capital.

7—Justice Department has not approved the grape juice sale plan of California company represented by Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt.

HIT BY TINKHAM

The Appropriations' committee's report was a non-committal statement of the necessity of funds. Rep. Tinkham filed a minority report assailing the entire fund and the bureau's policy.

Quoting Woodcock's testimony that, because of home-brew is difficult, Tinkham said:

"It was also admitted to the committee that a private dwelling was immune from search even if it was known liquor was manufactured there, provided no sale was made, from which admission it was concluded and is beyond contradiction every home in the United States is a potential and legally protected winery, brewery or distillery."

Explaining the bureau's policy, Director Woodcock said:

"We are directing our forces against commercial violations, against the traffic in intoxicating liquors. We are not making any effort to apprehend private violators of the law. There are so many constitutional difficulties the task would be an impossible one to apprehend private violators. But we think we can stop the open traffic in intoxicating liquor by developing the force we have and the force we expect to get."

DEFENDS DRY FORCES

Woodcock aroused Tinkham's ire in hearings by approving the tapping of telephone and telegraph wires to obtain evidence. Denying he was dictated to by the Anti-Saloon League or other dry organizations, Woodcock said:

"I have not had the slightest communication on any subject with any of those bodies or anyone representing those bodies."

Woodcock defended the prohibition agents, but admitted 17 were dismissed from July 1 to November 30, 1930, for various causes including intoxication, collusion with violators, attempted extortion and insulting women.

BODY OF FRITZ GIRL IS FOUND IN WATER

Hands Are Tied, to Prevent Swimming, Her Friends Believe

The body of Miss Lillian Fritz, 24, Wellesley College graduate, was found in Buzzards Bay at Mattapoisett today, with wrists and ankles bound with her own silk stockings.

It is the theory of police and of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fritz, of Arnold st., New Bedford, that the girl tied her own ankles and wrists in order to assure her death and prevent her swimming.

She was an extraordinary performer in the water and was noted in college as a swimmer.

The young woman hired a taxicab yesterday in New Bedford and was driven to the private wharf of Charles H. Hamlin in Mattapoisett.

She sent the driver back with instructions to get her sister, but when the sister arrived at the wharf there was no sight of Lillian. On the wharfarf, however, were the missing girl's coat, hat, shoes and bag.

Police dragged in vain last night and up to noon today. The dragging was continued by Linus F. Eldridge and Capts. George Eldredge and George Howland, all of Mattapoisett, and they found the body in 15 feet of water, 75 feet out from the wharf.

Beats 2 Bandits

WOMAN ROUTS 2 AND GETS CASH

After being bombarded by cakes and robbed by two holdup men in her store at 248A West Newton st., last night, Mrs. Bessie Sedersky grappled with one of the thieves and recovered the stolen money.

The bold men, one of them with face badly scratched, escaped in an automobile containing a woman and three children.

According to the police, the men entered the store, the University Delicatessen, when Mrs. Sedersky was alone.

While one man engaged her in conversation, the other ran behind the counter, opened the cash register and started scooping, change into a paper bag.

Mrs. Sedersky screamed, whereupon the first man seized several cakes and hurled them at her. Both then started for the door, but Mrs. Sedersky fell on the robber carrying the money, scratching him severely on the face and neck. So spirited was her attack that the thief dropped the bag of money and fled with his companion.

NEW CRISIS IN INDIA PARLEY

London, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Indian round table conference today split over the old Hindu-Moslem problem. The establishment of self-government may be seriously delayed.

At the conference today the Moslem spokesman declared there could be no transfer of governmental responsibility to India until the Hindu-Moslem problem is solved.

Yesterday when Lord Chancellor Sankey presented the plan of government it appeared India was within reach of a virtual dominion status governed by two legislative houses modelled upon the Congress of the United States.

The Lord Chancellor said the conference would end Monday and Ramsay MacDonald would appear before a session Friday to announce the government's Indian policy.

Lord Peel, the Conservative delegate, said these statements raised grave issues, and the Hindu spokesman tried to smooth things over by suggesting that some method of arbitration applied in India could solve the situation.

"The airways system which we have in the United States, and are building, has given us a permanent position in the matter of air transportation," he told the House appropriations committee appearing on the $10,342,500 allotted to his branch today in the four-department supply bill.

Young said the United States had achieved aerial superiority despite large subsidies by European countries.

The bill carried $8,972,840 with which the branch will establish and maintain civil airways.

Federal Jurors Quizzed on Religion and Dry Views

Washington, Jan. 13 (INS)—Prospective federal court jurors in Kansas City were asked their church affiliation and attitude on prohibition in a questionnaire, which was later discontinued, according to testimony given the House appropriations committee and made public today.

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Plans formed by the labor department for collection and publication of employment reports as provided by last year's Wagner bill are to cost slightly less than $80,000 during the next fiscal year.

Trains Safer Than Ships, Says Federal Expert

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Dickerson N. Hoover, chief of the steam boat inspection service, doesn't feel as safe on a ship as he does on a Pullman, even though his statistics show the ship to be safer.

He told the House appropriations committee that on a 10-year average one airplane passenger was lost to every 2400 carried, one railroad passenger to every 201,000 and one steamship passenger to every 4,500,000 on inspected vessels.

"Personally," he added, "while I am familiar with ships, I rather instinctively feel that the railroad is safer."

War Dept. Payment in Silver Coin Urged

First Woman of 40 in Big Poison Plot Is Hanged

Szolnok, Hungary, Jan. 13 (AP)—Crying "God help me," Frau Maria Kardos was hanged today in the prison courtyard here in atonement to the state for the murder of her husband and 23-year-old son last year.

She was the first woman to be hanged by court sentence in Hungary for many generations.

Frau Kardos, one of 40 women who appeared in the group-poisoning trials of last spring and summer, and, one of three to receive the death sentence, lost the jaded ennui which had marked her early demeanor in the few days preceding her death.

As execution became imminent she was stricken with terror.

PERIOD OF PRAYER.

She partook of a bowl of goulash in her prison cell last night. There followed a period of prayer with friends and a Protestant clergyman, interrupted once when the hangman came to weigh her so as to calculate the measure of her fall from the scaffold.

She sprang back, screaming, but was reassured when friends told her the executioner was a doctor.

It was in the semi-darkness of an early winter morning before perhaps 70 witnesses that Frau Kardos went to her death. She was the picture of helpless resignation, a pitiable object, as she walked to the gallows preceded by a Protestant clergyman.

She was awakened early by a guard after having passed a restless night. She dressed leisurely in her Sunday clothes and sipped a small quantity of coffee before starting for the gallows.

Weeping silently, she walked with staggering gait a short distance to the foot of the gallows, where in an open circle stood the president of the court, two physicians, a small group of scientists and newspapermen.

READS SENTENCE

Behind the scaffold were the hangman and his two assistants. The president solemnly read the sentence to the shrinking woman, who bowed her head in acknowledgment and murmured "God Help me," weeping bitterly.

The condemned murderess was seized gently and drawn beneath the gallows where the hangman passed the noose over her head.

He tightened it about her neck and then bound her arms and feet. As the stool on which she stood was kicked away she seemed to be unconscious.

The hangman stood on a ladder, holding the woman's head, with a handkerchief over her face. After a few seconds a physician, using a stethescope, said the woman had lost consciousness. In eight minutes the heart stopped beating.

One of the condemned woman's last cl ers was the man known as Stefan Todor, her sweetheart. He arrived in a sleigh this morning and was admitted to the prison to see her. She received him coldly.

REMOVED FROM SCENE.

Todor obtained permission to witness the execution and shouted frantically, threatening everybody around, when the woman was pinioned at the gallows. He had to be removed.

Frau Kardos was the first to be executed of the three women convicted and doomed to die in the group trials. Others of the 40 women who were tried on charges of poisoning their husbands, sweethearts, children or other relatives, received varying prison terms or were acquitted.

The group trials marked one of the most sensational chapters of Hungarian criminal history. The authorities, becoming suspicious of so many deaths in one neighborhood, investigated and found in most of the cases a midwife, known as "Aunt Susie" Szordas, had been present in the sick room.

It developed she was inciting the murders, most of which were for pecuniary gain, and then for a fee administering the poison. She was convicted of murder and sentenced to death but committed suicide in her cell.

"Aunt Susie" was said to have made a small fortune from fees for the murders.

War Department to Oppose Crail Bill

Washington, Jan. 13 (AP)—Opposition to the Crail bill extending disability pensions to persons on the army and navy retired lists was filed with the House military committee today by the War Department.

Bo-Rah Rah Rah for Henry Fletcher

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Carillon of 102,000 dinner pails clanked yesterday as that many Ford workmen ankled back to work.

Chimes of prosperity are sounding big and wide. You know things are normal when Borah took a wallop at Henry Fletcher.

"I have no quarrel with Mr. Fletcher," said Mr. Borah in an explanation that only deepened the mystery of why there is a man with whom Senator Borah has no quarrel.

Mr. Borah claims that Mr. Fletcher admits he knows nothing of the tariff. Which is our idea of an innocent and happy childhood.

The best thing to do with that tariff is to ignore it until searched.

Only one thing any government official needs to know about our customs and duties. That's how to kick upon a trunk.

That's the custom. And also a man's duty.

The Senate confirmed the nomination of Mr. Fletcher. Which confirms Mr. Borah's statement that the Senate and a Mississippi river poker game are about alike.

When playing poker on a Mississippi steamboat you had to expectorate on the table because it was dangerous to turn your head for a second.

We congratulate Mr. Fletcher on his appointment. It proves once more that two Borahs are an affirmative.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

"O Wad some power the giftie gie us
To see ourselves as others see us."

After the exhibit the President has given us of stubbornness in his appointments for the Power Commission, it would indeed be well could we see ourselves in many things. We went to war, as we were told, for the freedom of the seas and a world free for democracy. We have gotten neither as yet. In fact, we have padlocked this land against aliens, having deported thousands and purposing that thousands of others be banished. Prohibition, an attempt to fill our sails to heaven with blasts from hell, has failed necessarily. One can almost see the Statue of Liberty toppling from its pedestal in New York harbor and falling beneath the waves. Our once proud boast of a land, the asylum for the oppressed of all lands must now be abandoned. Prosperity which was for all is now for the few.

Our industrial depression here is often alluded to as an emergency. It is no more an emergency than the effect that follows cause, the tides of the moon, and other natural phenomena. Unless we alter the policies of the past very radically, the depression instead of being an emergency will be an established fact. The country cannot go on forever where the rich grow richer and the poor, poorer.

The forces set in motion by past policies and customs will continue to grow and expand. The poor must not have the very shirts taxed from their backs while the super-rich, many of them, have taxes refunded to them. Many of the pleasures of life have been denied the poor because of the excise and nuisance taxes on the theory that all should be equally taxed. Our forefathers might well turn over in their graves at the spectacle the country they founded through blood and sacrifice now presents.

Croesus Finds Wealth in City Hall Berth

Editor Boston American:

Ananias, Methuselah and Croesus were seated in a speakeasy imbibing without convert. Said Croesus, "Come tell us Methuselah what made you live so long?" "I abjure the wine when it is dark," said Meth. Loud guffaws greeted him.

"Ananias," said Methuselah, "how came you to be known as Prince of Liars?" Ana drew a hand across his smiling brow. "You see, it's this way," he began. "I'm an honest prohibition agent, and . . ." The bird and Bronx cheer seared his brain.

"Now, Croes," the hooted ones said, "tell us how you amassed your fortune." "Well, boys," he began as he opened a bottle of pre-war stuff made last week, "I passed a civil service exam and landed in the City Hall Annex at $1100 for each year.

"Not much dough but it keeps one at home nights. After six years I tied the laborers in pay and so started to spend. I went on a Roman holiday. Yet I was thrifty and saved quite a bit. Who said slavery?" he quizzed in a big powe. "It keeps one trying and good."

"Rolling in wealth, I married. My spouse stayed in the office, as the boss needed her, or something like that. At any rate, he was boss or I was boss or she was the boss. Between my wife and myself we stretched the dollar till the rubber trees bent and the whole Scotch nation got jealous and sent us threatening letters.

"From my savings I plunged into rubber mine stock and wool trees, educated fish, which kept to the mid-Atlantic in the best waters, thus providing a succulent dish for pampered rounders and obese epicureans.

"I'm broke now, but there is one thing which I shall always attribute my success. And that is the little nest egg I saved during my first six years in the Hall."

Ananias leaped to his feet in a rage. To the assemblage who stood as straight as West Pointers, he yelled, "This man gets the brown derby for 1931." Then he fled.

Finds Feeling Against Married Women Working

Editor Boston American:

The feeling against married women working still hangs fire. There is some justice in this matter and some injustice. Cases of married women working should be looked into carefully before any drastic action is taken.

Some husbands are incapable of supporting a wife and home. They work but they do not get sufficient to pay all the expenses involved. Many married women working do not take to the idea of neglecting their home life. But there is compulsion rather than choice in their action. It is really thrust upon them to work and in one instance I know to pay past debts incurred by long illness.

There are cases, no doubt, where dropping married women is justifiable, but I think that they are few and far between.

Investment Authorities Differ on Security

Editor Boston American:

George W. Coleman of the Babson Institute claims that there is no such thing as absolute security in investments. It may be also added there is no royal road to success for investors.

This coming from a source of authority on investments made me feel dizzy for upon another occasion I heard just the opposite to this statement from another representative of the above institute. Which is right?

Says Veterans Should Be Given Preference Over Aliens

Editor Boston American:

I would like to answer Mr. Patrick J. Ward. From his letter a disinterested party is given the impression that all aliens fought during the World War.

This is untrue. An alien was not obliged to fight, but a citizen was expected to do his duty. By his own admission, Mr. Ward is an alien. Curiosity prompts me to inquire why he has not been naturalized.

He says in part: "The overwhelming majority of murderous criminals in the U. S. today are native born Americans; they can and do teach aliens criminality."

Such an amazing statement is preposterous and an insult to real Americans. Come, come, Mr. Ward, be a good fellow. Such statements are offensive to the unbiased, intelligent observer.

Florida Temperature in Your Kitchen

Kitchens know little about the changes in seasons. They remain warm — summer and winter. It makes no difference to your refrigerator if the thermometer outside the kitchen window registers zero. The room temperature is probably at summer heat.

That is why it is so necessary to see that you have all the ice you need—in winter as well as summer. Perishable food requires careful protection all around the calendar.

You can be sure that your food is safeguarded if you keep the ice compartment of your refrigerator two-thirds full at all times. This will maintain the degree of coldness which the United States Government has found to be efficient in the preservation of food.

CONGRESSMAN IN PANAMA MOB

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—The story of an American Congressman who posed as a Panamanian and marched with the mob that unseated President Arosemena in the recent revolution was on record today.

Returning from Panama yesterday with a congressional party headed by Senator Roscoe C. Patterson of Missouri, Representative Robert H. Clancy of Detroit said he saw the President and his wife pushed into the street on Jan. 2, 12 hours after he had been presented at the palace.

"I took off my hat and coat," Mr. Clancy said, "ruffled my hair to look like a Panama peon and marched in the center of the revolutionists to the President's palace, and was the only American citizen who saw the revolution through.

"The wild men among the revolutionists wanted to kill him and Mrs. Arosemena and all the ministers of the cabinet. Had the American troops taken part on the side of the Panamanian government every official would have been murdered. Fortunately, our minister, Roy Davis, kept a cool head and the danger was averted."

Hearst Editorial on Power Board on Record of Congress

Washington, Jan. 12 (UR)—The editorial entitled, "The President vs. the Public," published in the Hearst newspapers yesterday, was placed in the Congressional record by Senator Dill, Democrat, of Washington, who took a leading part in the fight to oust three members of the power commission.

The Washington Senator made no comment on the editorial which stated that "you see the Senate championing the cause of the public and the President joining forces with the power trust."

Time Bomb Rocks Brooklyn Section

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—A time bomb exploded early today in a house in the Ocean Hill section of Brooklyn. None of the 11 occupants was hurt.

Police concluded from the downward force of the blast it was caused by a dynamite bomb placed in the vestibule of the house and intended only to frighten the occupant.

Get thick, lasting suds INSTANTLY—this new way!

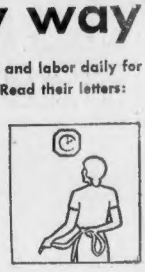
Mrs. W. D.—
"At 10 A. M. my wash is drying"



"Washing used to be an all-day affair for me. But when I first saw the piles of rich, lasting suds that Chipso Granules make, they gave me an idea! Now I just toss my clothes into a tubful of those suds, the night before. In the morning there's nothing for me to do but rinse them out."

Mrs. H. W. W.—
"Organdie curtains or heavy overalls"

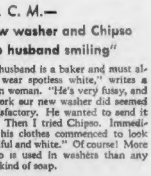
"I use the same soap for my sheer draperies now that I use for the heaviest wash—and that's Chipso Granules. These creamy suds seem to stand up forever—and meanwhile they're coaxing the dirt away. Very little rubbing to do even on overalls, yet these suds are mild as milk on hands."

"An easier, shorter washday has dawned for me," writes Mrs. H. B., of Clinton

Chipso Granules shorten all washing labor—for they dissolve instantly and completely. What suds they make, too! Genuine Chipso suds, with all Chipso's wonderful, gentle cleansing qualities—plus this quick dissolving that saves you time and trouble and makes every last atom of soap do its full pound of work. Use Chipso Granules for dishwashing as well as in the laundry—wherever you want quick, thorough suds to get things clean in a jiffy.

Mrs. M. A. S.—
"No more puckery hands"

"My hands were always puckery from so much harsh soap and water," says a Roxbury letter. "When they dried out, they were red and rough. Now that I use Chipso Granules, my hands certainly feel the difference! I do almost no rubbing on clothes; and the water is so nice and soapy, I can use a mop for dishes."



Mrs. C. M.—
"New washer and Chipso keep husband smiling"

"My husband is a baker and must always wear spotless white," writes a Boston woman. "He's very fussy, and the work our new washer did seemed unsatisfactory. He wanted to send it back. Then I tried Chipso. Immediately his clothes commenced to look beautiful and white." Of course! More Chipso is used in washers than any other kind of soap.

WIDE NEW YORK PROBE SOUGHT

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 13 (AP)—An investigation of such scope as to include the outermost reaches of New York city's government and courts has been demanded of the Legislature by its Republican majority.

The demand existed today in the form of a concurrent resolution, sponsored by the Republican party, as an attempt to get to the core of alleged widespread corruption in the metropolis and introduced in both Houses of the Legislature last night.

The breadth of the proposed investigation would be great enough to include all branches of the city government, the governments of the five counties within the city and state and local courts.

The investigating body would consist of four Senators and five Assemblymen, to be named by the majority leaders of the two Houses, Senator John Knight and Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies. The committee would have the right to demand testimony from witnesses regardless of immunity pleas, but evidence so procured could not be used against the witnesses for purposes of criminal prosecution.

The measure was introduced by a New York City Senator, Samuel H. Hofstadter and a Brooklyn Assemblyman, Robert E. Story.

Legislative Control of Cotton Crop Asked

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 13 (AP)—Legislative control of cotton acreage was endorsed here last night by the Southern Association of Commissioners of Agriculture. The state commissioners had been told in addresses that a growing surplus and overproduction threatened southern growers with poverty unless the output was reduced.

Speeding of Oustric Scandal Probe Urged

Paris, Jan. 13 (AP)—A demand was made today upon the parliamentary commission investigating the Oustric Bank scandal for a speedy conclusion of its work to determine whether Former Minister of Justice Raoul Peret and Rene Besnard, former ambassador to Italy, should be brought before the French Senate.

Still Time to Join Fisher Coach Model Test

Just a short lesson this week for Boston Evening American Chapter members in the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild. Here are some new problems calling for ingenuity on the part of the coach builder.

How to make the decorations for the ends of the bolsters, and how to form the tonneau brackets will call for some thought, some experiment, and some really painstaking care. The decorations on the bolster may be carved or painted. If the builder decides to carve them, a fairly hard, fine-grained wood such as maple, birch, mahogany or walnut will be preferable to a soft wood.

Such magnificent awards as the Guild competition provides will thoroughly justify all the effort you can put into your coach. Try various ways of producing parts which are difficult to make, using small bits of waste material. Then when you feel you have developed a satisfactory method, go ahead and make the part you are really going to use in the model which will represent you in the $50,000 competition!

Remind your friends they still have time to join the Guild and earn their share of the awards! Any General Motors car dealer will

LESSON NO. 19
Front Upper Gear

Bolsters

The two bolsters are much alike in shape and design. The front bolster is a little wider through center, due to the king bolt having to pass through it. Pine, bass, birch, walnut or mahogany are suggested as woods for the bolster.

86. For the front bolster you will need a piece of wood ½ in. x 2 in. x 8 in. For the rear bolster the stock size is 5-16 in. x 1 in. x 8 in.

87. Make cardboard pattern of bolster shape by tracing from Guild drawing.

88. Cut bolsters to shape with coping saw, or jig saw.

89. Finish with file and sandpaper.

90. The ends of bolsters are to be carved as indicated on drawings. This may be done with a knife, small chisel or gouge, or filed on with a small round file.

91. The side design on bolster ends may be stamped in with a nail punch, or the design painted on.

Tonneau Brackets

The two tonneau brackets are to fasten the tonneau cloth (think to which driver's seat is fastened) to the coach. Notice their location in the Guild perspective drawing. Illustration No. 12, accompanying this lesson, shows these brackets a little closer. They may be cast from patterns or built up as suggested and indicated in Illustration No. 12.

The fifth wheel was described and illustrated as a part of Lesson No. 8. Our lesson next week will take up the spring assemblies.

THE LAST MILE :-: By Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER 44

THE WEIRD, uncanny howl of the siren broke the silences. Voices and the sound of running feet outside were heard.

"Two guards dodged back and give th' warnin'," Mears went on D'Amoro. Mayor—get at those windows and shoot th' first one who tries to come in or shove a rod in. Kirby, you got more education, you write down what I say."

They went to the little table by the chair where a guard always sits, night and day. Kirby sat Mears stood.

"Write—'Warden. We——'"

He was interruptec by a fusillade of shots that came through the windows, but they went up an angle and splattered on the ceiling of steel and cement.

Demands for Liberty

"Look out, Mayor!" D'Amoro yelled.

Mayor ducked down. D'Amoro fired three shots.

"Got 'em—got all three!" D'Amoro cried.

"All right, don't get hit, and don't waste a shot, just keep 'em off—wish to God we had more bullets," and Mears turned to Kirby.

"Write, 'Warden, we convicts of the death house demand liberty. We'll take the priest and your brother-in-law, Callahan, with us—got that?"

"Sure, it's swell—what next?"

"'Give us a big closed car, in swell condition, plenty of gas and oil—and four hours' start. No double crossing, and we'll drop your men four hours later. Start anything and we'll croak both O'Connors and Callahan.'

"Now wave something out that window, Mayor, and drop down this note to 'em."

Mayor got his handkerchief, put it on the spike end of the fire ax and waved it from the window of the cell.

"Hey, Mayor, quit—I got to add th' kick."

Killer Mears took back the note and had Kirby write:

"If you don't do as we say by 9 tonight and we'll win one of your guards and toss him out—and every half hour we'll kill another and toss him out until either you give in to us or we kill every one of your men in here, and we've got six."

"Now throw it out, Mayor—"

"You can't mean that!" Guard Harris shouted from the cell where he was locked.

"A guy's comin' with his arms up—a trusty," Mayor called out.

"Cover him, watch for tricks, D'Amoro—drop th' note to him Mayor."

They did so.

Mears had climbed up beside Mayor. He shouted down through the window while Mayor held the flag of truce.

"Hey, there, below—give that note to th' Warden and tell him prompt action, no funny business—we mean what we say—hustle back."

To Mayor and D'Amoro he said: "Watch, plug anyone trying to put anything in here—they may try to get some gas in—keep 'em back, but shoot to kill, don't waste a bullet."

He came back.

"We'll try and bust out the bars in seven, Kirby—"

"I command you, in God's name, to give up," Father Connors said.

"Give up what? Give up this chance to be sent to hell sizzling? Shut up," growled Mears.

"This bluff won't work!" Callahan growled.

"It's no bluff—you better get O'Connors to give you Holy Communion right now," Mears said.

He and Kirby worked away at the bars in cell seven. It seemed to the guards locked up, that every blow was on their own heads, they were so badly frightened. These men were killers.

Mayor and D'Amoro at the window had dodged back.

"They've got State troops out there now," Mayor said.

"Hey, Kirby, it's time."

"All right—who you gonna croak?"

"Drake—he's th' worst—he deserves to go first."

Mears went in and dragged him out. He was gray with fear and almost collapsing.

"Listen to me, Mears," Father O'Connery cried. "I want you to listen to me now. Consider that you are about to take a human life!"

Kirby held on to Drake as Mears turned to the priest.

"Ain't that rich—I'm about to take a human life! Say—how many human lives have you given here at this place taken! What the hell? What's worse, taking my life or that black-hearted, cruel——"

Father O'Connors murmured. Perhaps it was a prayer for Drake.

Mears dragged him into the next cell and as he got Drake inside, out of sight, Drake screamed.

"Mears! Mears! No—for God's sake don' kill me, Mears—you——"

There was a shot, and the sound of a falling body.

After the shot and the thud of Drake's body, Harris screamed in fear.

"He's done it!" D'Amoro said.

"He said he would—he's that sort of a guy—this'll get us out," Mayor declared.

Father O'Connors stared at Mears with sorrowful, accusing eyes.

"Terrible beyond words," he said.

"Yeah?" Mears answered, "well, it's not so terrible, he had only a couple minutes warning and went in a flash. He didn't have to wait and count the weeks and days and hours and minutes before he'd die—he didn't have to wonder how high voltage electricity felt sizzling through his body—he was lucky—you got it wrong—it's executions that are terrible—sudden deaths like Drake got are humane—and don't get me mad."

There was a sickly silence from the guards in the cells.

"Write a note, Kirby—write: 'Now do you believe we mean business?' Another goes like this in 20 minutes unless you give us the big car and freedom.'"

They Mean Business

Kirby wrote the note, Mears went into the cell, followed by Kirby.

Outside the din increased—a rain of bullets, a staccato of shots, and the weird, ungodly howl of the great siren.

Mears and Kirby came out with Drake's body. O'Connors and Callahan could see the note pinned to it.

It was shoved out through the window of cell seven. Now they saw how far ahead Mears had planned. Those window bars had to be out to permit dumping out a body if the warden didn't give in.

"All right, don't shoot—unless they shoot first."

"They've got it—it's back now, around a corner—that cowardly warden's around there, I guess, where he can't get hit."

The wait seemed long. Mears thought that every minute someone would come with a note saying the warden had agreed. Finally he spoke up.

"Hey, Kirby, get Peddie ready. Time's up!"

"Say, Mears, don't do it, will ya? God—I got a wife an' kids. I can't come out—I won't come out—you ain't going to butcher me——"

He clung to the bars of the door.

"You yaller dog!" bellowed Harris.

"Mak—I command you in the name of God Almighty, this brutal killing must stop!"

It was Father O'Connors.

Mears paid no heed to him although his voice would have stirred the heart of almost anyone—who had a heart.

"Come out or I'll plug you where you are, Peddie."

"No—No—NO!" screamed Peddie.

Mears fingered the automatic.

Peddie screamed. His scream was cut off short by the sound of Mears' gun. He was a dead shot. Peddie scarcely quivered.

Another note was written. The operation with Drake was repeated here. The body was thrown out. Someone got it. Another long wait and no reply.

Society Girl Weds Prince

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, Jan. 13 (US)—The lovely Shirley Manning is now a Russian princess.

At an impressive ceremony yesterday in the Russian Orthodox Church, on the Upper East Side, Shirley, a daughter of the John A. Mannings, of 212 East 48th st., and Londonville, N. Y., became the bride of the personable Prince Serge Poutiatine, a former captain in the Fourth Regiment of Sharpshooters of the once famous Russian Imperial Guards.

It was last November when society learned that Shirley was scheduled to become the daughter-in-law of the Prince and Princess Michael Poutiatine, who now make their home in Paris. In making a formal announcement of the betrothal, Mr. and Mrs. Manning did not set any definite date for the wedding, and yesterday's ceremony came as something of a surprise to society.

She dispensed with bridal attendants, but was represented among the ushers by her brother-in-law, Lewis S. Greenleaf, Jr., whose wife will be remembered as Edith Manning.

Prince and Princess Poutiatine sailed for Europe last night on the Europa and will make their future home in Paris.

This Is Golden Era of Small Hat

By ANN ARDEN

MODELS from LAMSON & HUBBARD

THIS YEAR, without a doubt, is the golden era of the small hat. Consummate skill has gone into its making. Diversity is its password to chic. Brims are handled with a high hand (no pun intended!)—they are either left off completely or they are rolled and trimmed back to unrecognizable effects. And the results are generally charming. The woman who formerly complained that she could not wear a small hat, especially one that made a negligible quantity of its brim, will find today that she can wear a dozen or more of just such hats.

EVERY FACE, every size seem to have been taken into kind consideration by the milliners. The small hat is a staple on every hat shelf—and again we repeat that it is the logical choice for wear with the winter coat, and to go blithely into spring framed in a lovely fur scarf. Drapery is an important theme, especially so in the beret-turban category.

THE FLEXIBLE bit of chic pictured is formed of black-and-white celaphene straw, worn off-the-forehead, and skillfully draped to side loops, two on one side, one on the other. The beautiful silver fox scarf worn proves the description frequently given this lovely pelt of "moonlight on midnight."

IT IS of brims, though, that we would like to rave a bit. Never have they been so utterly fascinating. They tilt, curve, ripple flare up away from brow or ear, and even taper away to nothing in the back so that the curl of one's coiffure may peak coyly forth. A hair would really be ashamed not to admit some little eccentricity of shaping! The manner in which trimming is used adds much to the charm of brims, too.

* * *

Length Set for Skirt

New York, Jan. 13—"Women have made up their minds about skirt lengths. There is no longer any question about how long or how short they prefer.

For general street and daytime wear this spring skirts worn by a majority of women will be middle calf length. For the more formal afternoon wear the lower calf length will be most popular.

For evening wear, ankle length—but enough to be graceful, short enough to be comfortable—will be the choice of most women.

Upper calf length is still in fashion for active sports wear, but shorter than upper calf length is definitely out of the fashion picture, according to Amos Parrish, leading in the Boston American, in the second day session of the Fashion Merchandising Clinic at the Savoy Plaza Hotel here today.

MIDDLE CALF LENGTH

"Today, if you were to measure the daytime dresses of women you would find—as we have found from fashion scores taken all over America—that the average length is 12 to 13 inches from the floor, or middle calf length," said Mr. Parrish.

"Women's dresses today are longer than they were a year ago and decidedly longer than they were two years ago—because women want them that way.

"In 1928 and 1929 fashion began to reach out for femininity. One way was to have longer skirts. They came in first in evening wear—where most all fashion changes start.

"First the dresses were longer only in points. They looked queer. But they were worn by some. Then more.

WOMEN BECAME CONFUSED

"Then came the fall of 1929. Fashion became confused—or rather, man; people became confused about it. Dresses were introduced for street wear that belonged no place outside a dance hall—if there. They dragged in the ground in unbeautiful points—dripping beneath the bottoms of coats, impractical. Too quick in their change from the ones before. Hence they couldn't last.

"Then a year ago a gradual modification took place. Fashion recovered her balance after that long period of liberty and short skirts. The length of skirts dropped to middle calf for street wear. Ankle or full length in the evening—sometimes longer in the back. And by fall of 1930 fashion had completely recovered poise. As a matter of fact she had never lost it. She had just gone off on a little spree."

Gen. Edwards Is Reported Improved

Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, Yankee Division leader during the war, was reported improved today from a stomach illness that has confined him to his Westwood home since last week.

Continued sleep for several hours at a time have aided the 71-year-old army man to regain his strength, his physician said.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

FOR THE MOST part the Slavic drama we know best is one of hard knocks—life's stark realities laid bare, with plenty of seats on the sidelines for anguished mourners. But it is not always so, as you discovered in Turgenev's "A Month in the Country" at the Tremont. Here was a pastoral comedy, generally cheerful, free from taint and grim horrors—and brilliantly acted.

* * *

EXCEPT FOR ONE lady in the narrative, only estimable people stalked the stage, and even the strange behavior of Natalia Petrova might have been set aside as nothing worse than a case of nerves brought on by a restless and unromantic husband. At any rate, love was in the air but most of it never moved one step beyond conversation.

Nicholas Young

The comedy was a lovely picture of sunshine and pretty gardens, with young hearts throbbing beautifully out of tune. Sweet affections must go astray, but there was no end of engaging moments and awakening comedy to spice the evening.

IF A GREAT deal of matter was written and discussed on the subject of unrequited love, it was done to good purpose, and the proceedings, when finished, left chiefly a memory of some mighty fine entertainment, admirably set forth and every bit of it taken with a relish. Splendid characterizations marked every step in the course of the comedy. Its personages were indeed strictly human; there was the pompous landowner who thought principally of his business and his estate; the young ward with only soft and dreamy eyes for the stripling tutor; the jealous wife, and the rivalry for the same young tutor started all the trouble, and, finally, the family decided to turned out to be an attractive old rascal with an eye to the main chance.

AND FOR ALL these characters, their moods and their situations, there was talent to match. Alla Nazimova, Russian to the core, played a cautious, scheming Natalia—an amusing creature of flighty habit. She passed every test in emotion and gesture; she amused you easily, even bewildered you. But she was the author's Natalia. In even greater degree you found Cecil Yapp nudging constantly at the elbow. He was the doctor who cured with funny stories and who was not averse to a little chicanery if the profit was warranted. There were others, too, whose merits ran high. Of these mention should be made of Earle Larimore, James Todd, Francesca Bruning, Edward Arnold and Henry Travers. Briefly the latter, Mr. Travers, held the stage —and what a pity, for he added abundantly to many unexpected delights.

ALTHOUGH IT IS comedy predicated on the love of two women for a man, and their apparent willingness to fight it out, "A Month in the Country" presented no scenes of wild disorder. A few tears, some recriminations and then, quietly, the peace and tranquility of a country estate in Rundu (old Russia, 1840) started on homebound in excellent spirits.

COPLEY GIVEN MORE COLOR

The new regime at the Copley Theater finds changed decorations, adding a refreshing note of color to the theater and providing the patrons of the Back Bay house with comfortable and attractive surroundings.

The addition of a ladies' lounge has been made on the lobby floor. Here the color tones are in shades of yellow, green and rose rust, black marble flooring, hangings in yellow with gold and white carved cornices. Empire green velvet hangings, a green and gold-flecked drop curtain and shaded antique side lights add another tone to the auditorium itself.

SCOLLAY BILL GOES OVER BIG

The comical black-face star, Al Herman, divides headline honors this week at the Scollay, with the Lee Gail Ensemble of dance stars. Opening the stage show were Boyd and Wallin, a fast aerial act. Next comes the comedienne, Lorraine Howard and Frances Todd, in an hilarious skit "Wedding Bells," followed by the Scollayettes in "Silver Fantasy." These popular dancers next appeared on the program in an excellent production number called "Gypsy Romance," in which George Gould sings and Frances Rose furnishes exceptional dancing.

Ray Hughes, "the fall guy," proved to be a riot with his clever and at times dangerous falls, assisted by the pretty Pam. Herman, with a new line of chatter, proved to be a big hit, and he furnished a surprise in the person of a companion who had a marvelous voice. The Lee Gail ensemble closed the show with one of the finest dance turns seen in many a moon, the special numbers by Jean and Lee Gail being superb.

PARAMOUNT BUYS RIGHTS TO FAMOUS WAR STORY

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service)

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Jan. 13—Six months ago Ruth Chatterton told me that she hoped to make "Stepdaughters of War" by Helen Zenna Smith. Ruth's ambition to do this story was aroused by the fact that "The Dawn Patrol," "Journey's End" and "Hell's Angels" were creating so much talk. She felt a picture showing the part that women played in the war would have the same value. That, of course, was before "War Nurse" and others of the same ilk were produced.

Paramount has bought the film rights of "Stepdaughters of War" which appeared in a serial and was later dramatized by Chester Erskine for the New York stage. Zoe Akins, author of "The Greeks Had a Name for It" and the same gal who did such a good job on "Sarah and Son" is now writing the scenario. She tells me Louella O. Parsons "Stepdaughters of War" is now playing on the stage in seven different countries and with seven leading ladies, each of a different nationality.

KEN MAYNARD may not be all the world to the big towns but out in the hamlets and villages where picture-going is a fixed habit, he is the real thing. I don't think I ever saw him but once on the screen because his pictures do not play in our Los Angeles or New York first run houses, but as a producer once explained to me, it isn't always the big towns that bring in the money. Anyway, Mr. Maynard has just signed a three-year contract with Tiffany to make Westerns. He has made five already and they have been going so well the company has signed him up to make his own. He will tour the Put'in Theaters before he begins his picture making again.

GERRIT LLOYD, and most of us call him Jack, has been signed to do scenarios for Radio pictures. Jack has been with David Wark Griffith for the last 12 years. He was co-author with Stephen Vincent Benet on "Lincoln" and he wrote numerous other Griffith plays. The other young man of whom I speak is Tony Veiller. He is the son of the talented Bayard Veiller, author of "The Trail of Mary Dugan." Bayard Veiller is in town now and I suppose one of these days he will be cracking forth with a brilliant screen play. Speaking of "Lincoln" reminds me Una Merkel, who plays Ann Rutledge for Griffith, has an important role in "The Maltese Falcon."

BARITONE TO GIVE RECITAL

Igor Gorin, baritone, opera singer of Vienna who recently arrived in this country, will give a recital at Jordan Hall tomorrow evening. He will offer ancient airs by Amarilli and Tregiorni, songs by Wolf, Schubert and Strauss; operatic numbers by Verdi, Wagner and Korngold and his program. Mr. Gorin has appeared in Berlin, Bucharest and Warsaw and is now on leave of absence from the Opera House at Aussig, Czechoslovakia.

GALA BILL FOR GAYETY FANS

An anniversary program opened yesterday at the Gayety. It was the speediest bill that theater has yet offered. There were pretty girls in large numbers and a barrel of comedy. There was variety, too, for three vaudeville acts were offered in addition to the burlesque. Because of the length of the show the afternoon performance starts at 2:10 and the evening performance at 8:10.

Miss Blanche was given a warm greeting. Before he and Fred Binder finished with their tomfoolery, the audience was howling.

Mae Mix, featured soubrette, was another member of the company who went over big. Adelina Parks, Frances Farr and Alice Kennedy joined in happily. Hobo's Jazz Hounds speeded things up. The vaudeville acts were Richetta, Fonzal and Regan, Deignan and Ball, and Regina and Arthur.

Evelyn Laye in Film at Loew's Orpheum

Evelyn Laye, famous light opera star of the English stage, who last season was the sensation and toast of America in Ziegfeld's "Bitter Sweet," makes her American screen bow in "One Heavenly Night," the Samuel Goldwyn production coming to Loew's State Friday. John Boles, Leon Errol and Lilyan Tashman are the chief players in the large supporting cast.

SPECTACULAR SUPER-FEATURE ON AIR WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON 3:00
WBZA BOSTON 3:00 Wed. Afternoon, Jan. 14
Edna Wallace Hopper
The One Woman in the World Who Never Grew Old
Is On the Air Wednesday Telling Exactly How She Does It!

Famous Stage Star Who at Over 60 Has the Face and Figure of a Girl, to Broadcast Her Basic Secrets to American Women Over N.B.C. Blue Network in Special Youth Matinees—Next Appearance Wednesday, January 14th.

DO YOU ever wonder whether you're not beginning to look your age? A bit "middle-aged", perhaps, in the way you walk, the way your skin acts; in the broadness of your hips, of one of several other obvious ways? Well, then, here's your chance.

Edna Wallace Hopper is finally going to tell American women how she does it. And so that she can accommodate her vast audience, has chosen the radio to do it, where the crowd won't be too great. One time she attempted to do it at a San Francisco theatre, and then had to call the police to handle the crowd. 10,000 women tried to jam into the theatre that afternoon.

At over sixty she looks like a girl. Her skin is as unwrinkled and youthful as the average woman of 25. Her figure that of a girl of 16. When she walks down the streets of Paris or New York, boys of college age frequently try to flirt with her. At something past 60, she recently returned to America to present the difficult technique of the acrobatic adagio to American theatre-goers with her partner, Fernand Grip, famous dancer of the Casino de Paris.

To Tell Women 2 Basic Secrets Wednesday on Air

Now—on Wednesday, Jan. 14th at 3:00 P. M. Eastern Standard Time, 2:00 P. M. Central Standard Time, 1:00 P. M. Mountain Time and 12:00 Noon Pacific Time, Miss Hopper will broadcast the exact ways and means she uses from the roof of the famous New Amsterdam Theatre, New York City; under the auspices of the Affiliated Super-Features of the Air.

In this talk Miss Hopper will tell you simple ways to end two universal problems of women. (1) How to eliminate age lines and wrinkles from the face. (2) How to lose that "middle-aged walk" most women past 25 reveal to advertise their age to the world. Remember the date and time and tune in.

Introduction by William Morris, Famous Theatrical Figure and Head of Morris Theatrical Agency, New York.

Program sponsored by AFFILIATED SUPER-FEATURES OF THE AIR.

STATION WBZA, Boston, Wed., Jan. 14, 3:00 P. M. Also Station WEEI Every Tues. and Thurs. 2:30 P. M.

Strange But True
The two pictures below of Miss Hopper were taken exactly 31 years apart. No question, surely, whether or not she has found the secret of youth!

BALM AWARD TO HIGH COURT

Providence, R. I., Jan. 13—The fight of Miss Anne Munroe for the $23,000 awarded her in a jury verdict in her $75,000 heart balm suit against Paul Lavimodiere, wealthy Woonsocket lumber dealer, will be carried to Supreme Court.

Initial steps toward this end were taken today by counsel for Miss Munroe, who claims she was twice turned aside in matrimony by the man whom she taught, years ago, to read and write.

Miss Munroe, who is 55 years old, was awarded the $23,000 more than a year ago, but the verdict was later set aside by Judge Leonidas Poulion.

The judge said he could not conscientiously give approval to a verdict, "based not upon the weight of evidence but upon passion, sympathy or prejudice."

BANK ROBBER IS HELD IN MAINE

Farmington, Me., Jan. 13—Leaping to the running board of an automobile driven by a fleeing bank robber, John Dodge, 34, wrenched from him a bag containing $2500 stolen money with one hand, and punched him with the other.

The robber beat Dodge off and sped away in his car, only to be captured three hours later near Norridgewock, and to confess, according to police, to holding up the cashier of the Franklin County Savings Bank.

He was booked as Walter T. Tracy of Mercer, and today was in county jail here under a charge of robbery while armed.

According to the police, Tracy entered the bank just before closing time, and presenting a gun at James P. Whorff, cashier, demanded all the money he had.

Whorff handed over $2500 and Tracy ran to his waiting automobile, reaching it as the cashier turned on the bank alarm.

Dodge, in the street, at once connected the hurrying Tracy with the alarm and jumped to the running board of the machine

DELAY ACTION ON LYNCHING

Maryville, Mo., Jan. 13 (AP)—No definite action was announced today against men who yesterday invoked lynch law in the case of Raymond Gunn, accused of attacking and killing Miss Velma Colter, 19-year-old teacher, last December 16.

Gunn, seized from a sheriff's party marching him to court for a preliminary hearing, was burned to death.

Leaders of the mob said Gunn confessed he killed the teacher and implicated Paul "Shibe" Smith, another Maryville negro, in the attack. Officers discredited the assertion Smith was involved

Duke Offers to Keep the Secret for $100,000

The Story So Far

Connie Calvert, beautiful daughter of a rich family, lives with her widowed mother in a Connecticut town not far from New York. She is to be married to Jim Tracy, a pleasing young man who works in a brokerage office. The day before her wedding she receives a letter which greatly disturbs her. She sends Jim home. Jim, however, sensing that something is wrong, parks his car in a secluded spot and late in the evening hears Connie's roadster leave her garage. He trails her, but his gasoline gives out and he loses her. She goes to a cheap restaurant in Dedham, where Duke Garson, a gangster, tells her she has a half sister in the underworld. He offers to keep the secret for a price.

By Robert Terry Shannon

THE WORDS of Duke Garson, harsh and cruel, beat upon Connie like blows. These people — Kitty and Garson — had lived their lives in a fiercer environment than her own. Their words, their thoughts, were like weapons. From the beginning they had put Connie on the defensive.

The shock of discovering this unknown half-sister, coupled with this brazen attempt at extortion, disorganized Connie temporarily. Against their hard, cold attack her carefully cultivated social self was confused and hurt. Yet, behind everything, an instinct of fair play told her that Kitty Calvert had right on her side.

"What I can't understand," Connie said to Kitty, "is how you think mere money is all that matters. The money is the least part of it."

Objected to Pay

"Oh, don't hand me that!" Kitty retorted. "I noticed that you objected to loosening up with any dough yourself immediately."

"What I said was that I didn't have any large amount of money myself to give you." Connie told her recovering some of her composure. "All I have is an allowance, the rest of the property belongs to my mother, and even that probably doesn't amount to as much as you think."

"You think a lot of your mother, don't you?"

"Of course I do—she's old and she's sweet and innocent."

"Well, I had a mother, too, and she was young and innocent when your father met her. You can't pull that sentiment stuff on me."

"Then I'm to understand that you want only money—nothing else?"

"You said it."

"How much money do you want?"

"Suppose you talk cash to the lady Duke. You're my business representative, you know."

Garson looked at Connie with a curious, studying expression. Steadily she returned his gaze.

"You think we're pretty cold blooded, don't you, Miss Calvert?"

"Certainly do," Connie told him frankly. "Furthermore, I don't exactly understand what connection you have with all of this. Are you her lawyer?"

Shining Light

"No, I'm just one of the bright and shining lights of Tenth avenue. Kitty is a friend of mine—that's all. You see, a lot of us down here belong to the same broad fraternity. People like you call us the underworld. We are a hard lot, Miss Calvert, but occasionally we happen to have justice on our side. This is one of those times. We don't have to be crooked in this instance; that's why I cut in—to steer Kitty right. Left to herself, she'd probably commit technical blackmail—which would be very foolish."

Increasingly, Connie was becoming conscious of the pervading flow of Duke Garson's personality. Even in the midst of this unexpected crisis in her life, she could sense a strange charm about him; but it was his mind, rather than his masculinity, that affected her. She could tell that he was on the border line between her world and this darkened existence that surrounded them. She was in no mood to respond to the glamour of any man, but even so, she sensed a mental quality in the man that stirred her with odd interest. He was, by several degrees, brainier than most men in her set. She Spiritual Bouquet Provides for 90 Masses for Repose of the Soul of James M. Curley, Jr.

A spiritual bouquet from 17 Boston College classmates of the late James M. Curley, Jr., now studying for the priesthood, was received at the office of Mayor Curley today.

Sent from St. John's Seminary, Brighton, the bouquet provides for 90 masses, 90 communions, 90 rosaries and 90 stations of the cross and was accompanied by a four-page leaflet, beautifully hand drawn.

SENDERS LISTED

On the front cover was "In Memoriam" with a drawing of the face of Christ surmounted by thorns, while inside was another "In Memoriam" with a list of the names of the senders.

The spiritual bouquet was received by Secretary Cornelius A. Reardon, pending the arrival of the mayor, who plans to return to his duties as the city's chief executive later in the week in an attempt to blunt his sorrow by work.

Although he needs a rest after this second recent visitation of death in his family, those close to the mayor say he will not let up in his work while the agony is fresh in his heart. Later the mayor will take a trip probably to the South, his friends say.

50,000 MOURNERS

Through a long day in which thousands paid tribute to the memory of his oldest child, James M. Jr., the mayor bore up under an ordeal which tried him to the utmost.

Everywhere were touching demonstrations of sorrow. A record throng of at least 50,000 who witnessed the funeral procession and thronged the Cathedral, testified to the sympathy of the entire city.

The most touching scene of all occurred at the cathedral when Cardinal O'Connell, who presided at the mass of requiem, had one of his secretaries call the mayor to the altar.

CARDINAL MOVED

As the saddened father reached the rail, the cardinal placed his arm about the mayor's shoulder and whispered his personal condolences.

The cardinal delivered a touching eulogy of the youth. Although he faltered for a moment at the start, he regained command of himself and delivered his message after extending final absolution.

At the cemetery, as the Rev. Fr. Kelly, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, read the committal service, the mayor stood with bared head despite the swirling snow and cold. Father Kelly several times interrupted the prayers to caution the mayor, but the latter stared blankly at the flower-covered casket. The other Curley children Miss Loretta Bremner, the youth's sister, and her family were grouped with the mayor about the grave.

FOLEY ADMITS JURY HEARD SENATOR WARD

South Boston Man Appears Last Thursday in Gilman Party Inquiry

Dist. Atty. Foley today admitted that State Senator Michael J. Ward of Roxbury was a witness before Suffolk grand jury in o probe of the so-called "grand jury party," held at the West Newtin home of Mrs. Florence Sennott Gilman, alleged "shoplift queen."

Senator Ward slipped in the grand jury room just before the noon recess last Thursday and left by a side door. He was not in the secret chamber more than five minutes. He told the grand jury he planned to sail for Cuba next day.

Official confirmation that Senator Ward actually was a witness in the Gilman inquiry was made by Dist. Atty. Foley in answer to charges of discrimination made by Congressman McCormack's friends.

McCORMACK'S COMPLAINT

They and the Congressman complained that he was hated before the grand jury as a witness without any attempt at secrecy and cooperated by the grand jury when Senator Ward was merely summoned to confer with the district attorney.

"Senator Ward was a witness before the grand jury last Thursday," said Foley. "He conferred with me and then went into the grand jury room just before recess. He remained in there a very short time. He told the grand jurors he had his tickets and planned to sail next day, and was excused."

Foley was asked if the grand jury intended to reopen its probe of the Gilman house party as a result of Congressman McCormack's written request to appear before that body.

"The grand jurors," he said "have invited Congressman McCormack to appear before them and tell them anything he may know, but beyond that I think they have finished with investigation of what transpired at the Gilman home."

A report in the shoplifting case against Mrs Gilman, and two colored women accomplices, is expected by the grand jury late today or tomorrow

REPORT TO HULTMAN.

On orders from Police Commissioner Hultman reports on the party at the home of Mrs Gilman on the night of January 3 were submitted to him today by Capt. Jeremiah Mosher of the Back Bay division and two other police patrolmen under Mosher's command.

Hultman's action was a result of a complaint to him by Senator Ward that he and others at the party were assaulted by police.

Capt. Mosher led a squad of officers to the Gilman home after receiving information that a party was in progress and that guests included a person who had access to the grand jury. The shoplifting case was due to go to the grand jury within a few days.

Commissioner Hultman, it is understood, asked each officer to explain in detail his part in the investigation outside the Newton house last night. The sergeants are Maurice W. Sullivan and Walter A. French.

Senator Ward, who was not publicly revealed as a guest at the party until he made his complaint to the commissioner, is now on a visit to Cuba. Unconfirmed reports in circulation today were that he was considering filing definite charges of assault and battery

FIGHT ON SHIP REVEALED IN ESTATE BATTLE

Asked His Children to Go to Paris and "Save Me!" Statement Declares

Evidence that the late Richard Sprague Stearns feared Mrs. Louise Lechat French and asked his children to go to Paris and save him from her, was introduced today in the resumed hearing of her suit

Mrs French seeks to recover one fifth of the $350,000 estate left by Stearns for having agreed to become his companion and treat him as a daughter should

The Boston State Deposit & Trust Co., executors of the estate, is named defendant, and the suit is being heard in Superior Court by Judge Dana Kenniston and a jury.

STATEMENT ADMITTED

Today Judge Pinanski admitted as evidence a written statement by Stearns, made in 1925 to Hugh A. Bayne, a lawyer now of New Haven.

In the statement which was read to the jury Stearns wrote that he son Billy never had written home of being engaged to Mrs. French as she claimed. The father said he knew Billy was engaged to Miss Esther Knapp of Norwalk, Conn and the engagement never was broken.

Stearns told of meeting Mrs. French in Coronada, California, and of her telling him she had been awarded the Cross of the Legion of Honor for her work as a nurse which he knew to be false

LICENSE OBTAINED

In the statement Stearns said he and Mrs. French obtained a marriage license in Texas to protect them rights.

On the voyage to France he said Mrs. French drank heavily and danced with ship officers although having promised not to do so. Later in his stateroom he told her, he said, a man had declared she could not have come from a good family, whereupon she tore his pajamas, threw his watch in the wash basin and opened a porthole.

Stearns said he started to put on a coat but Mrs French took it away from him and said he must suffer with the cold until he apologized. Stearns said he did apologize and that from then on he was afraid of her.

PRESENTS REVEALED

In the statement the former Bostonian told of buying Mrs. French a $1000 ring and a $1500 fur coat, in two months having given her some $6,000 cash in addition to her living expense

Stearns said Mrs French "attacked him furiously" when he refused to go to the theater with her, hitting him in the face and pinching the scar touching his arm.

A letter to his son and daughter, Richard and Emily, then was introduced, in which their father asked them to come to Paris and save me from this woman

SULLIVAN QUIZZED ABOUT HIS DONATIONS TO POLICE OFFICERS

SAYS TIERNAN AND TIMMONS WERE GIVEN MONEY AS TIPS

After twenty minutes' conference at the bench, John F. Sullivan returned to the witness stand in the Garrett trial today for cross examination under Attorney Daniel J. Gallagher.

Q—Mr. Sullivan, I want to bring— attention now to your testimony yesterday with respect to what you testified to in the grand jury when these cases were heard. You recall testifying yesterday that Sergt. Timmins received from you $20 a month? A—I do, yes.

Q—That Officer Tiernan got $20 a month? A—Yes, sir.

Q—And that testimony was substantially the same as you gave before the attorney-general? A—I believe so.

Q I read to you a stenographic record of your testimony before the Grand Jury on June 3, 1930, and ask you if you recall these questions and answers.

Gallagher read: "Question by Mr. Feiny, Q—Mr. Sullivan, you testified yesterday, but certain jurors wanted you recalled that they might ask you what arrangements took place and what money you paid and how to Officer Timmins and Tiernan? A—No arrangements were made at all I just simply gave them the money."

Gallagher to Sullivan: Q—Was that true? A—Yes.

JURY INSTRUCTED

Doyle asked the court to instruct the jury that the testimony only be used in Timmins and Tiernan and asked that it be so instructed.

QUESTION RULED OUT

Q—Now you have told us that the testimony before the grand jury is true and that the statement before the grand jury is false. Which of these statements is true? Question was excluded and the rights of defense counsel were saved.

Q—Which of these two statements you made here is true? First that you told the truth to the grand jury or second that you gave false testimony before the grand jury?

Judge Keating turned to Sullivan and said: "The counsel has asked you whether or not when you said a moment ago your statements before the grand jury were false, you were then telling the truth or whether or not your statements that your testimony to the grand jury was correct, was the truth."

Sullivan answered, "The last one."

Q—(By Gallagher)—You mean your statements before the grand jury were true? A—Yes

LAWYERS BARRED

Mr. Sullivan, have you any ob-

and I think they understand.

Judge Keating instructed the jury that the question related only to Timmins and Tiernan.

(Gallagher reading) Q—Was the money given from the proceeds of the hotel? (Record answer) It was taken from the hotel.

(Still reading from record) Q—How did you make the entries on the books? A—They were just marked as tips.

Q—I'll show you the record to refresh your memory. Come, come now Mr. Sullivan, (showing him the record) you remember it." A Yes I do.

(Reading from records) Q—Was it a donation to anyone in particular? A—Yes.

Q—Was there any names on the books? A—No.

Q—What was the idea in giving each of these officers money if it wasn't for protection? Were you making so much money that you didn't have to bank it? A—No that wasn't it

Gallagher to Sullivan: Q—Was that true? A—Yes.

Reading again from record: Q—What was your idea in doing it? A—It's a common occurrence to give somebody a tip.

Reading: Q—Do you know there is a penalty on your part for bribing an officer? A—I didn't bribe him. I gave him a tip.

Gallagher to Sullivan: Q Is that true? A—Yes.

Reading: Q—How much money did you give to Tiernan? A—$20.

Doyle objected on the grounds that the testimony was not competent and Judge Keating said he agreed he didn't see that it was

ANOTHER PARLEY

Another conference followed for 35 minutes after which a short recess was declared.

Then Atty Gallagher resumed questioning Sullivan, after asking that the grand jury testimony [illegible] be marked as exhibit, which was done

(Reading from the records.) Q—You did not expect protection for anything for the money you gave to Timmins and Tiernan? A—No.

Q—How much did you give Arthur Tiernan" A—$20.

Q—How long did you give this money? A—Three or four years.

Q Did you give anything to Timmins? A—Yes

Q How long did you g ve money to Timmins? A—Six months

Q—How much a month? A—$25

Atty. Gallagher Tries to Show That Sullivan Is Inconsistent

Gallagher—Now I offer this record to be marked to show the inconsistencies of the statements made by Mr. Sullivan before the grand jury and his testimony here yesterday

Q (to Sullivan)—I now call your attention to yesterday's answers (reading). "Q—Well, you did testify that the only money you gave them (meaning Timmons and Tiernan) was for an occasional tip? A—No, I didn't."

Doyle objected and Judge Keating asked Gallagher on what grounds he inquired in that particular testimony.

Gallagher—To show the inconsistencies of this man's testimony.

Gallagher read another question from yesterday's testimony to which Sullivan had replied "I said I had given them $20 a month" and asked the witness "Well now Mr. Sullivan, what explanation have you to make to these two contradictory statements in evidence" A—I have none

Q—You told us yesterday that Miss Hatch, whenever you handed her an envelope with the money in it, opened the envelope, took out the money and then would tear the envelope up? A—I did.

Q—Every time you handed her an envelope she did that very thing, opened the envelope, took out the money and then put her money in her waist. A—Yes.

Q—Well, when you told this jury that Miss Hatch was running these girls and making $200 or $400 a up.

Sullivan Says Help in Hotel Told Him What Miss Hatch Said

Q—Who told you that Miss Hatch said that? A—Some of the help.

Q—Who was it. A—I think it was one of the clerks.

Q—Well, the only basis of fact you have for offering that testimony is the statement of one of the clerks, the name of one of which you do not know? A—One of them told me that.

Atty. Gallagher turned to Judge Keating and said: "Your Honor, I move that all of the testimony that this witness has given about Miss Hatch getting $300 or $400 from the girls at the hotel be stricken out of the evidence on the ground that Sullivan heard it from somebody else. It is all hearsay evidence, Your Honor.

Judge Keating answered: 'The testimony may stand.

Gallagher: "You will note my exceptions, Your Honor

Atty. Callahan rose and said: You also will note exceptions by the defendant Garrett

SULLIVAN SAYS YES

Q At the Sidinger and Cockinos trial you were asked these questions and you answered that you did not give money to the police officers. You said you did not pay the police officers for protection? A—Yes

After reading each of the foregoing, Atty. Gallagher asked Sullivan, "Did you say that" and Sullivan answered "Yes" to each one.

JUST A HIRED BOY

Q—And you knew that when you did blacken and besmirch Miss Hatch with your testimony about her getting $500 or $600 a week out of the girls at the Ritz that it would be blazoned across the headlines of all the newspapers, didn't you? A—No, I did not

Q—Do you say Garrett had absolute control of the Ritz? A—Yes.

Q—And you were the hired boy? A—Yes

Q—With $100,000,000—I mean $100,000. This big money maker me dizzy. With $150,000 you say you invested, and a $100,000 mortgage, a payroll of four bartenders at $50 a week, a barkeeper at $50 a week, a housekeeper at $30 a week and all the paraphernalia of both the Ritzkeller and the bar, and the chambers upstairs, you were the hired boy, working for Garrett? Is that what you mean? A—No

Q—What did you mean when you told this jury that you were unable to put these girls out of your hotel? (Doyle interrupted with: "These girls were over 21.) A—Miss Hatch boasted around the hotel that if I complained to the Ritzkeller she would have Garrett close the place

ABOUT PHONE TIP

Q—You said when you received a telephone from Mrs. Garrett that you had a storeroom full of liquor? A—I did

Q—This was the $4500 or $5000 worth of liquor found in the storeroom? A—Some of it.

Q—Don't you remember that after the raid you were brought to court and complained of for keeping and exposing liquor and don't you remember the defense put up in your behalf was that the liquor had been put into two rooms which had been registered in the names of two men? A—I don't remember

Q—Don't you remember that was how you got out of the case? (Doyle objected, Judge Keating excluded it and a bench conference followed.)

After the conference Gallagher turned to Doyle and said: "Then you admit he was discharged?"

Doyle said: "Mr. Callahan says so."

Q—(To Sullivan by Gallagher)—Now, may it not go down in history that Sullivan was found not guilty in this case? (Doyle interrupted to say, 'It's already history.') Sullivan made no answer.

DIDN'T FIND BOOKS

Q—And you put the register before the court, or your attorney did, to show that Scott And Ryan, the two lodgers, were registered in the room? A—Yes.

Q—The fact is you kept the booze outside? A—Yes.

Q—Where? A—The next house

Q—How about the books of the corporation, Mr. Sullivan. Did you find the books? A—No.

Q—Did you find the bank books? A—No.

Q—How did you get liquor into the hotel? A—The rear door.

Q—(Gallagher picked up a copy of Sullivan's testimony in direct examination) You told Mrs Garrett when she called you on the telephone you had no time to move the liquor out on such a short notice. When the officers came they made some sort of search and were just going out when you saw Garrett and told him the liquor was on the fifth floor? A—I don't recollect.

Garrett Double-Crossed Him in Raid, Sullivan Declares

Q—These officers were all downstairs, including Garrett, and were going out when you told Garrett where you had the liquor? A—I told Garrett to keep the men away from the fifth floor.

Q—And that was when they had come downstairs and were leaving the hotel? A—Yes.

Q—Why didn't you let them go? A—I don't know.

Gallagher: I would like to have you think of that, Mr. Sullivan.

Q—Were you normal when you told Garrett that? A—Yes.

Q—Will you tell us why under the sun you called Garrett and told him where the liquor was when he couldn't find it? A—I don't know. That was when he was double-crossed me

Q Did Garrett's men go upstairs and take all of the liquor? A Garrett called two men and told them where to go

Q—And that's what you call the double-cross A—Yes

Sheets of flame following the explosion burst from second floor windows as apparatus arrived and District Chief Dennis J. Coughlin ordered a second alarm.

Many late dine and dance restaurants were closing when the first alarm sounded and home-going patrons gathered in the street to watch the firemen.

The street floor, occupied by the Royal Spaghetti Palace, was damaged by water and the Barratt Bros. and Prof. H. Wiseman dancing schools ont he third floor were filled with smoke.

The explosion occurred in the ing schools on the third floor were The fire was confined there.

A rumor that a man was sleeping three caused Police Sergt. John Willard and Special Officer Benjamin Goodman of headquarters to search the building. They later found that though an employe slept there some nights he had gone home last night.

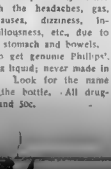
GAS relieved



WHAT most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. Food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention, it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick to its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate with no harmfull after-effects.

Once you learn this perfect way you'll never deal, in any other manner with the headaches, gas, bloating, nausea, dizziness, indigestion, billousness, etc., due to an over-acid stomach and bowels.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips'. It is always a liquid; never made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle. All druggists—25c and 50c.

THE EXTRA LOAD ON YOUR TAX BILL

Besides paying regular taxes in common with other industries, Stock Fire Insurance companies pay about 30 million dollars a year in special taxes in the various states.

These taxes are in reality borne by Insurance buyers. They necessarily must be figured in the cost of insurance.

The original purpose of taxes on premiums was to maintain state supervision over the insurance companies. But such supervision requires only a few cents of each dollar paid in. The balance goes into the general state funds.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States does not think this is right, and has so stated:

"‡ ‡ ‡ Special state taxes now levied on policyholders through insurance companies should not be considered as a source of general revenue, but should be reduced to the total in each state which will adequately support such state's departmental supervision ‡ ‡ ‡"

CENSUS DIRECTOR DEFENDS HIRING WOMEN ENUMERATORS

VETS BARRED BY RULES, HE SAYS

Legion Charges of Discrimination Are Sent to Washington

Demands that Census Director Louis B. Sensale make public the names of enumerators he has appointed were made today by three war veterans, who declare they represent 50 Legionnaires.

Charges that war veterans entitled to preference had been replaced as census takers by married women already have been made by three veterans William K. Beattie of Roslindale, William F. Conway of West Roxbury and Isador Laven of Newton Center.

Conway alleged inspection of the list of about 200 appointees would reveal the largest number of married women ever employed by the bureau. He further said he twice had been unable to find Supervisor Sensale when he sought an interview with him at the bureau office.

MUST FILE CLAIM.

Sensale said last night Beattie would be given the job if he conforms to the law and files a claim of veteran's preference with the local office.

Commenting on the complaints of Conway and Laven, Supervisor Sensale said that Conway has never been in his office to his knowledge.

Laven's claim, Sensale said, was illegal, as his home is in Newton outside of Suffolk County.

The three men say they have protested to William M. Stewart of the Department of Commerce at Washington.

They announce they also have interested United States Senator Walsh and Congressman Tinkham and have received encouraging letters from both.

FOUR ELIGIBLE.

Sensale said Beattie a former district was combined with three others, thereby making four persons from which to choose for the present census.

Mrs. Edith Lanville of 63 Cosgrove st. was appointed.

Rules say that enumerators no only must have worked on the previous census but must cover the same territory.

Twenty automobiles were saved by Peabody police and firemen today when a fire broke out on the second floor of a two story cement and wooden building at Washington st. a short distance from Police Court Officer Louis Tizzer and Probation Officer William J Kelley.

While Patrolmen Patrick Collins and George Kingsley were patrolling their beats their attention was attracted by the crackling of flames.

Upon investigating they found the entire second floor of the building, occupied by the T. & C. machine shop, in flames.

The blaze spread rapidly through the shop. The police, aided by the firemen, went into the Dole & Osgood garage, on the street floor and brought out the 20 automobiles. The heavy smoke handicapped the officers in the garage and some were temporarily affected.

Several nearby houses were threatened when the fire broke out through the roof.

BRUINS BATTLE RANGERS AT GARDEN

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

TUESDAY, JANUARY 13, 1931

MIDDLEBURY, HARVARD IN ICE TILT

Seldom in the 28 years of hockey at Harvard has the Crimson been able to place a team on the ice that combines the power and brilliance of the pre-season outfit. The team is exceptionally powerful on attack and its defense proved up to the great Harvard defense of other years.

This will be the first time Middlebury and Harvard have met in hockey, and the Vermont boys are anxious to make a good showing. The Vermonters fell before Brown last week but Coach Doris Phelan believes his players learned a lot about indoor hockey in the Providence battle.

Coach Phelan will send his men out to cover the Harvard men closely. Few teams can match the Crimson for speed, but if Middlebury can check the Crimson in the latter's own zone it is likely to upset Harvard's game.

Harvard has two corking fine forward lines and as the American intercollegiate rules will prevail in tomorrow's game, the Crimson will use only a limited number of players. Middlebury is here with a dozen players, many of whom played with local school teams.

Middlebury players have been drilling hard for the past month, and Coach Phelan believes his men will be in good physical condition for the Crimson battle. The Vermonters are accustomed to outdoor ice and may find Garden conditions a handicap.

B. C. RELAYS TO RUN AT GARDEN

For the first time in several years Boston College will not send its relay teams to the annual Brooklyn college games in New York. For years these games have been the opening date in the Eagles' schedule.

But this year, Coach Ryder, feeling that it is too early in the season to risk any of his star trackmen, has decided to withhold their initial appearance until the Boston K of C games, which will be held in the Garden late this month.

However, the Eagles will have three relay outfits at the Casey games, two varsity teams in the one and two mile races in addition the the freshman one-mile team. The yearlings are the only ones who have had any competition so far this year having defeated Northeastern University at the Y meet, in the fastest time made during the letter meet.

The Maroon and Gold will be at full strength for the Casey games and should make a creditable showing after another fortnight of practice. Their opponents have not as yet been selected. They will not meet their arch enemy, Holy Cross, until late in February, when there should be a very interesting affair between Don Fleet and Bernie McCaffery.

The two-mile team is practically settled, with Brendon Moynahan, Tom Daley, Tommy Meagher, and Capt. Jack O'Brien running another. On the one-mile outfit, Donald Fleet and Bob Sullivan are assured of places, but there will be a merry battle going on between Ed Carey, Jack Carew, Tom O'Brien, Joe Lang and Joe King for the other two spots.

Glenn Wright Signs With Brooklyn Team

New York, Jan. 13 (US)—The Brooklyn Baseball Club today received the signed contract of Glenn Wright, Robin shortstop. He was given a salary increase, estimates of his new contract running all the way from $15,000 to $18,000.

It was learned that Wright plans an early visit to the Robins' Clearwater, Fla., training camp. An injured ankle kept him out of some 20 games last year, and he hopes to gain full use of the limb such as back by running his legs into shape early.

Bobby Jones Still Has Magic Touch

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 13 (INS)—That magic touch has not deserted the clubs of Bobby Jones, even though he has retired from competitive golf.

The golf king went a round on the new No. 3 course at East Lake yesterday, and shot a spectacular 67, four under par and one over the course record he set several weeks ago.

Missing a few putts cost him several strokes.

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

THEY WANTED TO HANG JACOBS TO SOUR A. PLE TREE

PUGILISM, like politics, makes strange bedfellows. Here we have Joe Jacobs and Pa Stribling laying down like the lion and the lamb. Yet one amber October day seven years ago down in Columbus, Georgia, members of the Stribling clan courteous, chivalrous Southern gentlemen as not only proposed to string up Mister Jacobs but also Mike McTigue, who was Mister Jacobs' pal ticket in those days.

"Bedad and would you believe it," orated Rowld Michael upon his return North. "I bruk me hand and was in no shape to frighty but them galoopers in nightgowns extended me the wan privilege—to fight Stribling with a broken hand or to hang with a broken neck."

When we interviewed Mister Jacobs on the subject we tried to impress upon him that the hospitable Southerners only were trying to confer a historic honor upon him by stringing him to a sour apple tree. We told him that his out—like that of John Brown—would have gone marching on

"I want to do a little marching myself," explained Jacobs.

"But just think of the lovely song Irving Berlin might have composed about you," we remarked.

"Don't want Berlin to write any songs about me," insisted Joe.

And oh, the naughty names Jacobs called Stribling and the warm peace to which he consigned the Stribling clan.

Now Mister Jacobs has tied up with the Stiblings and given Young Stribling the coveted crack at Max Schmeling's world's heavyweight championship crown.

Our terrible Sharkey man must have thrown an awful fright into Jacobs and Schmeling to make Joe Jacobs tie up with the Striblings.

LONG GRIND FOR COLLEGE OARSMEN

ON THE fields of sport there is no greater eight-day test than two four, six and eight-oared crews, bronzed backs bending and flashing oars swinging in unison, coming down the broad reaches of the Charles, the Thames or the Hudson through the locks over in a few minutes. Of all athletic contests, none requires such a combination of strength and stamina as a boat race. The oarman little understands the long months of training and preparation a crew has to undergo. They already are at it at Cambridge and New Haven.

Over in the Newell tank 150 more or less sturdy oarsmen are working daily in hopes of wearing the Crimson in some of next spring's boat races. Charlie White's side hopes to beat four varsity eights. Down at New Haven Coach Ed Leather has 19 crews, including four varsity eights in tank and on the machines. At Harvard the crews remain indoors until White-side issues the official call for all varsity crews in February. At Yale Leader plans to segregate his varsity men as early as possible.

Despite last season's defeats by Yale, Cornell, Navy and Tech an air of optimism prevails at Newell. Interest and enthusiasm runs high and that is a good sign. Harvard men know that Coach Leather has developed speed in the Yale varsity this season and the Crimson hopes to wipe out the stigma of last year's Waterloo.

JACK MAY WIN BIG JACKPOT

MAYHAP when the showdown comes Squire Sharkey will be found to have won a bigger jackpot than Schaap and Schmeling Tuesday. Jess and Max go to whee the N. Y. State Athletic Commission under to fight Sharkey pays the way. Referee remains to be Primo Carnera. A match between Sharkey and Carnera might attract a bigger gate than a scrap between Schmeling and the hand-picked Stribling.

In the meantime, how about a return match between Carnera and Jim Maloney? That looks like a flatic natural. Their first duel here was one of the greatest heavyweight battles in years. But unless Maloney turns the tables on Johnny Risko in the Boston Garden next Monday there will be no chance of a return match with the Italian Stan Ruvnulph.

DICK DANIELS TO FIGHT SCHAAF

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

The audience paid its respects to the late James J. Curley, Jr., son of Mayor James M. Curley, before the main contest of the Argonne A. A. show.

Frank Ducey, announcer for the Argonne A. A., gave a short eulogy on the oldest son of our mayor and then taps were sounded as the fans stood for a moment of prayer.

Friedman started out in the early rounds to lead Daniels plenty of punishment. In the second round he had Daniels' nose bleeding from a spree of right hand punches and left jabs.

Daniels started to pick up on his work in the late moment of the sixth stanza, went on through the seventh and gave Friedman his worst punishment of the go.

Friedman at one time looked like he was through and would be taking the count. He bounded off all four strands of ropes and weathered the terrific storm of right hand punches which Daniels sent thundering off the side of his head and jaw.

Forcing Gives Friedman 1st Round

Daniels led with a right to the head. Friedman shot a right to the jaw and Daniels came back with a hard right which bounced off Friedman's shoulder. Friedman's forcing gave him the opening round. Two rigat handers, one of which brought the blood from Daniels' nose and the other rocked the invading battler in the second round.

The fifth and sixth were two more gruelling rounds.

The eighth stanza was not fast both battlers giving and taking an equal share of the blows. The ninth round could have gone either way on the counting of points, while in the final round one might give the shade to Daniels.

Leslie Baker of Watertown won another six rounder when he scored a verdict over Joe Vanuti of the North End.

Werner Arcelli of Italy had another gala night in the ring getting an eight-round decision over Dick Nowell of Roxbury.

Dartmouth Leads Collegiate League

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—Dartmouth's husky team was leading the field in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball League race today. The Indians upset Yale, 28—27, in a spectacular game last night to gain undisputed possession of first place with two victories and no defeats. Although handicapped by the absence of Aible Booth, who was ill, Yale's smoothly-working outfit piled up a 17—10 lead in the first half that Dartmouth flashed a brilliant offensive pulled up to even terms and went into the lead on Pickens' field goal with five minutes to play.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Golf irons, due to the thought given them in recent years by manufacturers having vast resources and the determination to make them better and better, plus the prods of even keener competition in the field already have been brought to a state of near perfection, so the changes in them for the new season are not be of more than minor consequence. Of course a few new clubs always are up the sleeves of the golfers, but these remarks properly concern whether or not you must get new equipment. The left relationship in the set of new clubs is not to be altered. The longer irons are to be given slightly wider faces and each iron of the set will be slightly goose-necked. This at least is the program which the leading makers and it is assumed the others will not be far away.

SHARKEY MAY MEET WALKER

Jack Sharkey has received offers of $100,000 from Philadelphia and Miami for a bout with Mickey Walker who has gone gunning after the heavyweights.

Chicago and New York are also interested in landing this match. It would be necessary for Walker to vacate his middleweight title for the bout to go to New York.

Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, has also issued a statement in which he agrees to match the American heavyweight champion with Jack Dempsey within 60 days if the former champion still thinks he can fight.

Buckley made this statement in view of Dempsey's remarks to the effect he believes he can knock Sharkey out.

"Dempsey is talking to help along his theatrical work," said Buckley. "He cannot lick anybody anymore. Sharkey will agree to stop Dempsey if the latter cares to take one more whirl at the flatic game.

"Dempsey has turned down as much as $500,000 for a return bout with Sharkey since they met in New York. He knows better than anybody else Jack can lick him."

Mrs. George Wightman, seeded No. 1 and Eleonora Sears, defending champion who is seeded No. 2 advanced into the quarterfinals of the women's state squash racquets tournament at the Harvard Club. Mrs. Wightman defeated Mrs. Robert Morris, 15—10, 15—12, 15—7, Miss Sears beat out Katherine Townsand, 15—11, 15—3, 15—7.

Ralph Stuart Beats Bill Rice in Squash

Bill Rice of Newton Centre defending champion, was put out of the Middlesex bowl squash racquets tournament by Ralph Stuart in a semifinal match at the Newton establishment, Stuart winning 8—15, 18—18, 15—8, 15—8.

Subsidizing by Iowa Head Is Charged

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Jan. 13 (US)—Charges against Pres. Walter A. Jessup of Iowa University in connection with the violation of the big ten conference rules are to be investigated by the State Assembly, it seemed certain today.

Jessup's own friends, it was announced, would ask the assembly to make a thorough investigation of the charges made by Verne Marshall, editor of the Gazette, who is conducting a campaign to rid the university of Jessup.

Dan W. Turner, who is to be inaugurated Thursday as governor, also is quoted as favoring an airing by the Legislature of the accusation that Jessup was responsible for the subsidizing of athletes. The new charges against Jessup have assumed so much importance that a real fight is assured when the Legislature, now in session, takes them up.

SENATORS GET HARRY RICE

New York, Jan. 13 (US)—The last of the players who came to the Yankees in their biggest deal of 1930 fadged from the New York picture today when Harry Rice, veteran outfielder, went to the Washington club by the waiver route. His release is not a surprise, as predictions have been made frequently since the close of the season that Harry would wear another uniform in 1931.

Rice came to the Yankees last spring in a trade which also brought Owen Carroll and George Wuestling to New York and sent Waite Hoyt and Mark Koenig to the Detroit Tigers Carroll was sent to the minors before the season closed and Wuestling followed in November just before the major league ultimatum clamped down the lid on player deals.

As was the case a week ago when they were the guests at the Garden, a capacity house will witness tonight's conflict. There will be 5,000 rush seats placed on sale early this evening and the usual 2,000 standee tickets will be sold.

By BILL GRIMES

Reinforced by the acquisition of Sammy McAdam, Ernie Kenny and Cecil Dillon, the New York Rangers will bend every effort to break the jinx the Rossmen have held on them since 1928 when they tackle the Bruins tonight at the Boston Garden.

Sammy McAdam is reputed to be one of the smartest play makers in the game. He played with Red Seattle in Vancouver last season, and although the young Scot was a better hockey player the critics and players speak highly of McAdam's ability. Kenny was a workin' mate Mackie McKay at Tacoma until that club blew up, and was the best man of the Pacific Coast League. Dillon, who was the high scorer of the Can-Am League until he was recalled from Springfield, is well known to the hockey public.

Bill Grimes

Due to the defeat by the Chicago Blackhawks, the Rangers have their backs against the wall. So they have three tough games scheduled for this week. After their sesto with the Bruins tonight, the Rangers tackle Toronto at home and then jump out to Chicago for a Sunday night attraction.

The Bruins returned from a five-day road trip last night and, although they came back with the scalps of the Ottawa Senators and the Detroit Falcons, they are tired and worn from their long, tedious journey.

Bruins Are in Best Form of Season

No club in either division of the National Hockey League has been able to match the pace of the Bruins. The club is clicking in wonderful style and, while not surely forging ahead to a safe lead in the race for their third American division championship.

With the exception of Hal Darragh, the Bruins will be at top strength for the Rangers. Darragh has been working out for almost a week and it will be a fortnight before he is allowed to get into action.

The return of Dutch Gainor to his old time form has had considerable bearing on the recent success of the Bruins. Dutch is in a class by himself as a defense man, but unlike the usual run of this type of player, he is a play maker par excellence. Coupled with the fact that he is a wing, instead of a center, Gainor's style is cramped at times.

With Gainor back on the Dynamite line, Weiland and Clapper have formed the other three of the goals and are feared by every team in the N. H. L.

Boston Team Will Get Off to Fast Start

Manager Art Ross has been starring the Weiland line of late, but he may cross up Lester Patrick and open with Beattie, Barry and Oliver. Regardless of which line Ross selects to open the festivities, the Bruins are expected to get off to their usual flying start, which has been featuring their games of late.

Although Manager Patrick will doubtless elect to have his veteran forward combination Frank Boucher and the Cook brothers, in the opening fray, he is expected to use his replacements more frequently than has been his custom in the past.

Ching Johnson and Joe Jerwa will be on the outer defense for the Rangers.

As was the case a week ago when they were the guests at the Garden, a capacity house will witness tonight's conflict. There will be 5,000 rush seats placed on sale early this evening and the usual 2,000 standee tickets will be sold.

Dick Dunn of Detroit to Be New Boston Garden Manager

MATCHMAKER AMES HOLDS BERTH

By JACK CONWAY

Dick Dunn of the Olympia Club of Detroit has been named general manager of the Boston Garden, according to information received by this writer today from a reliable source.

Dunn's name has been mentioned several times in connection with the Boston Garden.

Frank Joyce, who has been connected with the Boston & Maine Railroad, will become president of the Boston Garden.

There is a report along Broadway that Scotty Monteith, former manager of Johnny Dundee and now matchmaker at the Olympia Club in Detroit, may also join the local Garden.

Billy Ames is to be retained as matchmaker, but it is possible that Monteith may be added to the boxing department.

The official announcement of Dunn's appointment will be made within a few days.

Dunn was started in the boxing game in New York by Jimmy Johnston, manager of boxers and promoter of several important matches. He later went to Detroit as matchmaker of the Olympia Club.

Auto Depression Hit Boxing in Detroit

Due to the depression in the automobile business, the Olympia Club has not been doing well.

Dunn, it was revealed conferred with William F. Carey, president of the New York Garden, in New York before Carey came to Boston last week to attend a directors' meeting of the Boston Garden.

Broadway reports have it that Dunn will be in complete charge of all activities at the Garden. He is expected to devote much of his time to the boxing programs which have not been very successful during the past year.

A part of the new boxing program at the Garden will call for leading boxers to appear in the New York Garden to also sign contracts for matches in this city.

Dusek and O'Shocker in Garden Match

Dudy Dusek, Little Rock, Ark., heavyweight wrestler, will be back in the Garden ring on Friday night when he will meet Pat O'Shocker of Salt Lake City in a finish bout, best two falls out of three.

Dusek has won two matches at the Garden. He is an aggressive, willing fellow and possesses plenty of crowd appeal. He will make a good opponent for the colorful O'Shocker.

The winner of this bout will be signed to take on Jim Londos at the Garden two weeks later.

Sonnenberg to Meet Wykoff at Arena

Gus Sonnenberg will return to the local wrestling field a week from Thursday night when he will clash with Lee Wykoff, former University of St. Louis star, in a finish, best two falls out of three, at the Arena, under the direction of Paul Bowser.

It will be Sonnenberg's first match here since he lost his title to Ed George on the coast. He took a layoff following his meeting with George and is said to be in perfect condition again. Sonny left a Providence hospital to go to Los Angeles to wrestle George. He believes that he will win back his lost title.

Wykoff, one of the most promising of the younger crop of wrestlers, will give the former champion a severe test.

HARVARD'S FLYING FOUR TUNES UP

CAMPBELL SAILS FOR RACING AT DAYTONA

London, Jan. 13 (AP)—Capt. Malcolm Campbell was busy packing today preparatory to embarking tomorrow from Southampton for the United States, where he hopes to make an attempt to break the world's automobile speed record on the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla.

Capt. Campbell does not intend to let the dispute over finances between Daytona authorities and the contest board of the American Automobile Association interfere with his sailing at least, his secretary said.

The secretary said Capt. Campbell would attempt to settle the differences after his arrival, if an agreement had not been reached then.

Daytona Beach authorities have offered $4000 toward the expenses of staging the speed trials on the great natural course there, but the A. A. A. has insisted this is not enough and that $2000 more is needed.

A spokesman for Daytona Beach said yesterday the authorities would not pay any of the expenses of the A. A. A. in running the trials but further conferences were planned today between representatives of the two groups. The A. A. A. is asking Daytona Beach to pay the expenses of officials necessary to time the speed runs.

California Signs Up Ingram

Jeffersonville, Ind., Jan. 13

Ingram, ex-Navy coach just appointed head coach at the University of California at a salary reported to be more than $12,000 a year, today announced he hoped to retain "Rip" Miller, Notre Dame star of 1924, as his line coach.

Miller, who was a member of the famous Four Horsemen, has been the coach at the Navy Academy for six years.

"Miller's work has been most satisfactory and I hope I can take him with me," Ingram said. "I haven't talked to him as yet."

Ingram declared he had not had time to make any plans for work in California. He indicated that he might adopt some features of the Notre Dame style of football particularly the Irish line play.

"I will try to make football adaptable to the men I'll have on hand at California," Ingram said. "I don't know what style of play I will follow until I see the material that will be available."

The former Navy grid mentor whose middy teams won 27 games, lost 13 and tied 4 under his leadership, said he hoped to reach Berkeley on or about March first, in time for the spring football practice.

"I want to leave here as soon as I can," he said, "I am now winding up my affairs here as I am planning to make Berkeley my permanent home." Ingram is married and has two children.

UNIVERSITY CLUB PLAYS B. U. SIX

The University Club hockey team, oldest of local club sixes and one of the strongest contenders for 1932 Olympic honors, tomorrow night will meet the Boston University sextet at the Boston Arena.

University Club, defeated in the early season after close battles with Harvard and Yale, has now rounded into top form, defeating the strong Providence Hockey Club team last week. It plays Yale this Saturday.

Boston University, upset by the surprising Brown team in its first game of the season came back two days ago by trimming M. I. T. and now seems headed for the Boston college championship.

University Club boasts a strong collection of amateur stars. Its forward line of Ding Palmer and Paul Curtis of Yale and Johnny Chase of Harvard is good. For defense duty, Jack Hutchinson can call on Mithowen Fitzgerald Balfonstell, Bigelow, and Clark, and in Ted Learned and Hank Aywell he has two fine goalies.

Wayland Vaughan's Pioneers are a sturdy and colorful lot. Dick Lombard and Holmes Whitmore are playing their third year on the B. U. wings, and Art Wilson, a sensational sophomore playing center between them, are going better than ever. Capt. Bergholts and Dick French, together with Rona d Weafer and Al Raymond constitute a fine corps of bumpers, and Burt Grodberg, behind them, is a fine goalie.

BUN COOK LEADS IN SCORING

Montreal, Que., Jan. 13 (AP)—Fred (Bun) Cook of the New York Rangers, and Harry Oliver of Boston, are seriously threatening to displace Eberhard Cuddeflow of Detroit as leading scorers in the National Hockey League.

Latest averages, including games of Sunday, show Cuddeflow in first place with 25 points, but with Cook only one point behind and Oliver trailing Cook by a point. Bill Cook of the Rangers and Howie Morenz of the Montreal Canadiens are tied for fourth place with 21 points.

Figures for the leaders:

Three Fights or None Is Edict of Ring Promoters

New York, Jan. 13 (AP)—The current heavyweight boxing situation, as complex an affair as ever added gray hairs to a boxing writer's head, has reached the point where the fighters are being asked to sign, not for one bout, but for three bouts.

The sad plight of Young Bill Stribling, Macon, Ga., contender, might be taken as an example. Young Bill's father-manager "Pa" Stribling, was all set to sign Bill to a title match with Max Schmeling in June.

Now they're asking him to agree to two more battles in the event that Strib relieves Schmeling of the championship. They want Bill first to meet Primo Carnera in September, "they" being the Hearst Milk Fund officially and Bill Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden, unofficially.

Then they would have Stribling agree to fight again in 1932 against the best available opponent for the milk fund alone. Under the terms of this three-edged proposal, Stribling would post $25,000 of his 12½ per cent cut in the Schmeling-Stribling "gate" as a forfeit for the match with Carnera.

"Pa" Stribling took this offering under advisement, although it was plain he was not particularly pleased with it.

Yesterday's conferences were between Milk Fund promoters, representatives of Stribling and Schmeling and Bill Duffy, American manager of Carnera. Bill Carey was not there, for a New York Commission order forbids, under pain or suspension, any promoter to negotiate with a suspended fighter.

Carnera has been under suspension here since his unsatisfactory bout with Leon Chevalier in Call forna last year, and Schmeling and his manager, Joe Jacobs, were placed under the ban last week when the commission vacated Schmeling's title because he failed to agree immediately to a title bout with Jack Sharkey.

Tech Boxers Train for Army Conflicts

The M. I. T. boxing team, under the tutelage of Tommy Rawson, is holding regular daily workouts in the hangar gymnasium in preparation for the meet with the Army mittmen which will take place at West Point one week from Friday night, January 17.

The Engineers' greatest weakness is in the heavyweight class where there is a dearth of material There are plenty of candidates for the lighter weight classes.

Capt. Orleman of the Tech team, who, with the exception of one bout last year won all of his fights by knockouts, is in the best shape of his career according to Coach Rawson, who expects the young Engineer leader to duplicate his remarkable showing of last season.

clash at the mile at the big K. of C. meet on January 1, Conger will have the competitive edge. Ray has been working at the shorter distances, Leo at the longer. An athlete always works up to his distance, not down to it.

Our Bruins have some hopping around the map to do the rest of the month. After tonight's game there, it's the trail to Chicago for a game on Thursday, then jump to Ottawa, from there to New York, then to Philadelphia, back to Boston and then to New York again. It's a great way to study geography.

Soon the Southern baseball exodus starts. And take it from a fellow down with a tiny touch of the flu even talk of the Sunny South sounds good.

Allen Elected

Brunswick, Me., Jan. 13—The freshman track team at Bowdoin College has elected Charles W. Allen of Portland its captain, and Gordon E. Gillett of Winchester, Mass., manager, for the season ahead.

HARVARD, M. I. T. IN SWIM MEET

Harvard's swimming pool will be the scene of two tank meets tomorrow. Harvard Freshmen open their season against Roys' Club of Boston at 3 p. m. and the Harvard varsity tank team opposes M. I. T. in the evening.

Coach Harold Ulen believes that his varsity natators will win over Tech as they did against Bowdoin.

Notable changes are seen in the Harvard lineup for tomorrow's meet against the Engineers. Benin Wood, Harvard's crack 50-yard freestyle artist is omitted from the list of Harvard entries for the event. Bob Fallon and Bob Timken are named to start in the 50, with Fred Ayer as a possible alternate for either of these two.

Both Benton Wood and DeLima are scheduled to race in the 100-yard swim. Coach Ulen gives no reasons for the radical shift in the Harvard entry list.

Tech has a strong squad of 14 swimmers entered for the meet, and Harvard will have stronger competition than was the case in the opening clash with Bowdoin.

New Miniature Golf Course in Opening

The Corey Hill Golf club, the latest addition to the field of indoor miniature golf courses, will open tomorrow evening under the joint management of Phil Buccoli and Jack Glenn.

The opening night will be featured by a match play between John Bernardi, Charles Rivers, professional and Fred Lowe Brae Burn Club pro. Ray Ouinet, another prominent golf pro will also make an appearance around the course.

Francis Seymour in Second Straight Win

St. Johns Park Pa., Jan 13 (AP)—Francis Seymour, a freshman at son of Rome pa whirled from way back in the dust clouds to score his second straight victory for Frank Smith in the New York Press guide, a rough type of a dull off-day card here.

A length away labored Belmont, the early pacemaker, which held M Shea's Gold Star in the show spot by a half a length. The lowering clouds and intermittent showers, a fair sized crowd turned out. The track was fast.

Matt Adgie Stopped by Mickey Walker

Philadelphia, Jan. 13 (INS)—Matt Adgie, Philadelphia fireman suffered the first knockout of his career here last night when he was battered in the first round by Mickey Walker.

Walker, whose middleweight title was dropped vacant by the New York selons last week, allowed his rival 10 pounds, but that didn't stop him from tearing into him and putting him to "sleep" in 1.g time.

COCHET DENIES 'PRO' REPORT

Paris, Jan. 13 (AP)—Henri Cochet, ranking tennis player of the world and leader of the French Davis Cup players told the Associated Press today that he absolutely no intention of turning professional."

"My only present ambition is to be able to do everything possible to keep the Davis Cup in France," he said.

Despite this emphatic denial considerable agitation was apparent in tennis circles here. Friends said offers made him to tour with William T. Tilden as a pro were so tempting that they feared Cochet could not resist them long, despite his business connections here which he said, would not permit him long absences from Paris.

Hieroglyphics (sacred engravings) are found in abundance in excavations of ancient people's tombs. They are the expression of ideas by representation of visible objects, used in Egypt as early as 2112 B C

His Parents Object to Girl Who Works

—By BEATRICE FAIRFAX—

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am engaged to a young man whose family do not like me, and for a long time I was puzzled to know the reason as I'm a self-respecting girl and, some say, not bad to look at. At last a friend told me the reason for my unpopularity. For several years I've had a good job and salary in a large department store, and it seems my fiance's family thought it wasn't stylish to work behind a counter. The women of his family do not seem very intelligent to me, and I hesitate to marry into the family for very different reasons from those which keep them from welcoming me.

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Independent—The ladies of your fiance's family must be quite aged and behind the trend of modern ideas if they object to a girl working behind a counter. Don't they know that's what a large proportion of college graduates are doing to fit themselves as buyers and other top-notch jobs in the economic world. Don't they know that an English girl, "daughter of a hundred earls," worked in a New York department store one winter. Don't they know that it's the smart thing to have a job these days; that the daughter of many of our captains of industry and millionaires work? Do these ladies wear parasettes, ringlets and hoop skirts to match their antiquated ideas? No, I wouldn't disturb the young man because his mother and sisters are out of step with the time.

Shall She Tell She's Been Married?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am writing this for my girl friend, and she also wishes you would give her some advice. She is a girl of 22 and has been married but is separated from her husband. She has met a very nice man and she wants to tell him that she is married and every time she starts to tell him there is some other subject brought up. Don't you think it would be best for her to tell him? L. P.

Dear L. P.: Unless the young man you speak of has made the acquaintance of your friend in a very informal manner and they call each other by their first names, he must realize she has been married. Or does she still call herself "Miss"? Yes, by all means, have her tell him that she's been married.

She Turns Away Her Head

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A couple of months ago I was introduced to a young man and he took me out a couple of times, but I found him very "slow." Do you think that's because he doesn't care for me very much, or is it his way? Last time we went out we had a violent quarrel and he said "good-bye." When we see each other on the street now I just turn my head and pretend not to see him. Still he looks and smiles as if he wants to speak. What shall I do?

PATRICIA

Dear Patricia: If you turn away your head how do you expect the boy to speak to you, my dear Patricia? Would you like him to run around on the other side and try to speak to you from that angle, and don't you think that sort of "marathon" might create considerable attention in the street? Be sensible. Next time you see the boy, speak to him. Cut out the coquetry. As to his being slow—what do you mean, that he's dull and stupid, or that he is what is called "fast"? If the latter, I'm glad for your sake that you don't find him thrilling

What's in Fashion?

Comfortable Winter Necklines

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

SMART WAYS TO KEEP THE NECKLINE WARM

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—Smartness plus comfort. That's what a fashionable fashion must have this winter. And to make the smart costume comfortable, many ideas have been devised that make the costume even smarter than it would be without them!

Take that sensitive section through the neck and throat, for example. Keeping the neckline warm hasn't always been easy, especially those times when you didn't want your coat collar fastened up high.

That's one of the things fashion has given much thought to this season. It's smart to keep the neckline warm this winter. And there are many good ways to do it

Plaid Scarfs New

We've had two types of plaid scarfs sketched. One is long, narrow and fringed on the ends (Sketched at the right.) And it looks best with an informal or sports costume, as its effect is full and bulky. The other is shorter and shaped to the neck, and is worn tied like an Ascot cravat. (Shown at the left.)

And it looks fine with general daytime street costumes—either coats or suits. Because its effect is neat and tailored.

And either—or both of them—might smartly be wool or silk or knitted

Another kind of scarf that's stepped right up into the front ranks of winter fashion—and that's going to be fashionable in the spring, too—is the fur cravat

Chamois Jac. a Practical*

To keep not only the neckline warm, but the chest as well, lots of folks are finding the chamois jacket a practical investment. It's an especially good sports fashion, but chosen in the right colors can go under the regular day time coat as well.

Cut high around the neck, as one sketched at the left, it's a sure guard against the most bitter winds. And that's where its value lies. For while it's not a material that's warm to the "feel," like fur, it is a preventative of cold

But the warmest thing of all—and one of the newest as well—is the little fur "dickey" that you tuck down inside the coat over the chest and button up close around the neck

And, of course, we mustn't overlook the smart coats that are designed with a warm neckline in mind. Scarf collars of fur that button tightly around the throat, or collars that roll up close at the back and fasten there—you'll find all sorts of them. And they're all comfortable and fashionable.

Thanks for Call on Phone

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

1 Is it proper for one who has received a telephone call to say at the end of the conversation "Thank you for calling."

2. What is the person who made the call to say in reply?

3 Is it correct for a young woman to say this to a young man friend who has called?

HELEN

1. Yes, proper, thoughtful, and a most friendly and gracious thing to say. In fact, it is one of the most delightful things to say at the end of a telephone call and you hear people say it always.

2 "It has been delightful to talk with you," or "I have had such a happy time chatting with you... I hope that I am to see you soon."

3. Yes, very polite

A Correct Form of Introduction

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

1. My friend is coming home from college and is bringing a friend with him. He asked me to get a "date" for his friend which I did. Will you please tell me the proper form of introduction for this occasion? Neither of the young men knows the girl and I am not acquainted with the other young man

2. Shall I introduce them as "Mr" and "Miss" or may I use their first names? MISS L.

1. First present your young man friend to the girl: "Miss Graham, may I present Mr Hall? Then introduce the other young man to the girl: "Miss Graham, may I present Mr. Waterman?" Or you may use the simpler form of introduction, "Miss Graham, Mr. Hall Or you may use the first form for the first introduction, and then the simple form for the second introduction.

2 You do use the "Mr" and "Mr." when you make the introduction, and if you wish you may also use the first names. This often gives a real added charm to the introduction, a suggestion of close friendship with both that you wish to share with both

Tailored Negligees for Traveling

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

Kindly tell me if it is correct for a young lady to wear a silk, rather extravagant negligee in the hotel hall on the way to the bathroom; if there is not one convected with her room?

There has been some dispute regarding this information and I thank you in advance for your answer.

TWO READERS

When we travel, it is always best to take a simple, tailored robe of some kind, a so-called Pullman robe, excellent for trains and in hotels or a dark silk or quilted satin dark also, or a dark tailored bathrobe. Then we would not have to wear in the corridors of hotels, going to a bathroom, inappropriate negligees that are appropriate only in the privacy of one's room

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

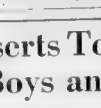
Desserts Tempting to Boys and Girls

By MARTHA LEE

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Housemakers' Club of Over 37,000

"OH, GEE, mother, bread pudding again? Why don't we ever have a good dessert" So wails Johnny and refuses to eat his nourishing and economical dessert. Goodness knows, we have to pare expenses somewhere and it is just plain waste to throw away stale bread, but if the family rebels against bread pudding and French toast until it sticks out of their ears, why not try a slight disguise in the form of choco ate-nut-meat nishi?



Martha Lee

American boys and girls seem particularly partial to chocolate and there is no better way for them to gain those added calories of energy than to eat plenty of it, provided you know it is pure and good. One of the best ways to inject chocolate into the young one's diet is in the form of puddings and custards, which they will eat if for no other reason than the rich smooth dark brown taste of chocolate Johnny's dreaded bread pudding may be dressed up past all knowing as follows

CHOCOLATE BREAD PUDDING

Scald 4 cups milk or diluted evaporated milk and add 1 cup chocolate syrup. Pour over 2 cupfuls bread broken in small pieces and let soak for 15 minutes. Add 2 slightly beaten eggs, ½ tsp salt, 1 tsp. vanilla and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake in a slow oven, 250 degrees F., for about an hour or until a knife comes out clean

Cheerful rice pudding is also a "cheerful little earful" for mouthful, if plain rice wearies the palate

CHOCOLATE RICE PUDDING

Scald four cups milk, add one cup chocolate syrup, one-third cup of rice, one-fourth tsp. salt, one-fourth tsp. nutmeg and pour into a buttered baking dish Bake in a slow oven, 25 deg. F., for about an hour. Stir often at first as rice will not stick together on bottom. At the end let brown on top without stirring.

Chocolate Cup Custard follows easily along and I made thusly Beat four eggs slightly, add three and one-half cups scalded milk in which three-fourths cup chocolate syrup has been dissolved. Add a few grains salt, one tsp. vanilla and pour into custard cups and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a slow—325 deg. F.—oven for about 40 minutes, or until knife come out clean. Make 12 custards

There are chocolate syrups on the market which I will be glad to tell you about, or you can make your own up in quantity and put it away for future use. Mix 2 cups sugar and 1-2 cup of rich cocoa together thoroughly. Add one cup of boiling water gradually while stirring constantly, bring to the boiling point and let boil for 5 minutes. Add ½ tbsp of vanilla, cool and store in glass jars in a cold place

I have many other recipes caring for chocolate if you'd care to have them, including the famous chocolate waffles, and a line on a postcard to Martha Lee will bring them to you

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Household Hints

A DECIDED CHANGE given to Angel Cake if extract of rose is used instead of vanilla

A TSP OF VINEGAR added to water when poaching eggs will prevent them from breaking

Answers to Requests

HERE ARE three interesting answers to Mrs C M D. Cambridge who asked what could be made with a lot of old silk stocking

If dark shades remove color first with Rit, if light not necessary. Cut stockings in 2-inch strips, string by string (it is worth the trouble), otherwise, cut in very small strips and use for that extra sofa pillow that you always wanted too, but seems to have enough of those)

Silk underwear and silk or lightweight wool sweaters can be used in the same way. Do let the work be done quickly, invite about 5 to 8 girls your own if you and from 11 to afternoon, when children are safely tucked up you would for your recipe party. Have ready all material, pounds of stockings cut in long strips paper bags, one for each child and have them rip on an hour or two and are your pair dwindle Then serve afternoon tea a la Martha Lee The small girls will adore it.

MRS FRED KORESKY

MANY USES

WHITE SILK STOCKINGS are to cut in very thin strips and crocheted into slippers, etc. Split one up to make lovely soft dusters for furniture. A great many may be paired up, if of same texture, and used a slightly darker color and are almost as good as new They may also be used several different bright colors, and braided, crocheted and hooked rugs made from them. I make underclothes for dolls out of it and many other useful little things, linings and filling for pillows (I make small pieces for filling pillows), fold in three or four layers for holders, cut longthwise for mops, and numerous other uses will suggest themselves when you get started.

ELIZABETH H RISSEY.

PRETTY RUG

A VERY PRETTY RUG can be made from discarded rayon underwear, dressings and stockings Right out from the body where it is sewed down cut in round and round, starting from the hem. Make strips three inches wide Braid these pieces using one as you go along

When a long braid is cut you can wind in round or oval rugs, sewing braid together basebali stitch. Hold loosely or it will hoop in middle. Have just finished one alternating back and orange. Dyeing added pink with tintex, boiling it in to make fast color. Shall use in bathroom. Also cut off cotton tops and use with old flannelette and boys' golf stockings for another rug.

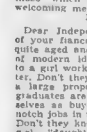
Don't Become a 'Shut-In'

You Need Fresh Air in Winter

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

IT IS a pleasure to find on sale today an occasional book that goes right to the heart. My friend, Harry Hersfield, has just published his "Super City," a brilliant novel, gripping tale of human interest But more than this, the book is rich in philosophical comment.



Dr. Copeland

In my reading I lingered over a trifling incident, unimportant to the plot, but it contains a hint worth observing. Two friends had just finished a hearty lunch. In spite of good October weather, balmy and bright, they lolled in their chairs with the club windows tightly closed

It is, indeed, surprising that men who profess to love the out-of-doors will submit to the vile air found in many of their indoor haunts. Clubs, offices, lodge rooms, even dining rooms, are requisitely stifling. The atmosphere is polluted and the simplest hygienic rules of right living are utterly disregarded. Why is it?

If your duties are such that during the winter season you are denied the advantages of regular exercise out-of-doors, there must be found a substitute for sunlight. In this connection, talk with your doctor about the ultra-violet lamps. A few minutes' exposure to their rays will do almost as much good as several hours in the sunshine. They will build up in your skin a resistance to heat and cold.

TIGER HEART -:- -:- By Robert Terry Shannon

wondered if he was a crook But crooks, she had imagined, did not possess his easy fluency of speech

"Who are you, and what are you" she asked him, with sudden, frank impulsiveness

He moved his hand slightly, a repressed gesture that seemed to dismiss the question.

"Oh, I belong to the avenue —that's all. I happen to know a few more words than some of the others because I've read several books, but we're all one big family around here, so to speak Kitty's a pal of mine, and the rest doesn't matter."

"I see," Connie murmured, "All the both of you want is just a lot of money, isn't it?"

Asks $100,000

The sum was grotesquely impossible. Kitty and Duke Garson had by far overestimated the cash Connie might command While every sympathy she had for Kitty was beginning to be obliterated by these demands. Abruptly, she turned her gaze from Garson to the girl.

"I should think," she said coldly, "that you would realize that this is sheer nonsense to think you can squeeze that much money out of me. In the first place, I haven't it in the second place, I can, if I like, be so cold-blooded as you are."

"You probably take after your father," Kitty said, her eyes level.

"Perhaps we both do," Connie replied. "I want to be fair with you Why can't you—why can't we—stop all this mercenary discussion and face the facts? I think life has played an infernal joke on both of us. We're not angels—we're sisters. This has all come on me so suddenly that I'm upset, naturally. Don't you think it possible that we could get together without being disagreeable? I want to do whatever I can to help you—"

Garson answered for Kitty

"The only thing you can give Kitty is money, Miss Calvert You are sisters by the accident of having the same father, but in no other sense. The sum we mentioned was quite reasonable. If Kitty started to go to court, she'd probably get much more. Why beat around the bush?"

A stubbornness, deep and fundamental, rose up in Connie

"I won't pay," she said, firmly.

Connie's defiance—her decisive refusal to surrender money, under pressure—brought a sudden freezing expression on Duke Garson's face. Kitty, too, lost all mobility of countenance Their faces became mask-like; frigidly ominously, they retired behind blank expressions. Connie was not used to such people—a queer feeling, akin to fright, chilled her at their sudden stillness. She had come against a stone wall

And tomorrow was her wedding day It was all well enough for her to be stubborn and stand up on her rights as she was doing, but, in this tense silence her imagination became active and reckoned at the thought of the vindictive revenge they could so easily take. They could disgrace and degrade her—they could blast the serenity of a mothers life

Mentally she saw all the scandal of the newspapers—the prostration of her mother, the inevitable brand of disapproval scandal stamped upon her father's name. With bloodless cruelty they could disfigure her whole social existence

And they would do it, too! Those impassive faces did not have that stony remoteness for nothing. Tiger people! Under the table Connie's hands were clinched. She was hanging on to her nerves and she realized unless she completely controlled herself she might easily veer toward panic. All of her life she had felt herself to be strong and firm-minded, but this was an attack for which she was not prepared. They had the advantage all the while. They struck at her dignity of life

Lastly, she thought of Jim Tracy Poor Jim—the high of it would fasten upon his name and follow him throughout his career!

"I can't see why you should want to hurt me," she said, with sudden wistfulness. "Kitty "You know you've caught me off balance; it's unfair."

A little light came back into Kitty's eyes

"It's Unfair"

"Unfair! That's rich."

"But it is unfair," Connie insisted. "I've never done me any harm in my life, yet you threaten to throw mud all over my mother and the man I'm going to marry and me because of something I was not responsible for"

"Not absolutely you dodge the money,' Duke Garson said, his voice a thin steel blade. "It's left you You haven't that much money!" Connie declared passionately. "We're not millionaires"

"You can get it," Garson informed her.

"We're—how?"

"It's quite simple," he said, "I suppose a bank handles your mother's financial affairs. You could sell a few bonds out of the safe deposit box or put a mortgage on the Calvert estate, if you don't know how to go about it, I'll advise you myself."

Gems From the Beauty Box

Types of Poisonous Charm

By HELEN FOLLETT

BEWARE of a certain type of poisonous, night-blooming beauty. You see it in the night clubs in the wee, sma' hours. It isn't the kind of beauty a young gal should try to copy; it may carry the face of a cherub, but it is selfish, greedy, gaudy and vulgar and belongs to the class known as gold-diggers. The gimme face has a hard line around the lower jaw, it is too free with its display of rouge, eye shadows and lipsticks. It doesn't know it, but it is out of date. Subdued, discriminating makeup is fashion's edict at this particular moment.

Olive oil comforts hands that have acquired a rough surface, but it is not as convenient to apply as cold cream. The longer the friction is continued the more beneficial the effects. Dead cells are fluffed away and knuckles have a thorough renovating. A perfect hand lotion is compounded by soaking sixty grains of whole gum tragacanth in fourteen ounces of rosewater for three days, adding one ounce each of rubbing alcohol and glycerine, and a few drops of one's most beloved perfume.

Wrinkles come when the soft underpadding of the skin loses tone, or when the skin is drawn into lines through facial gestures. The more oil the pleated complexion receives, the better. Tapping briskly because it helps the skin, tissues, fibres to function properly.

Morgan Visit To Gibson Is Cheerful News

Forbes Reveals a Unique Incident; Its Meaning; Wiggin's Daring

—By B. C. FORBES—

New York, Jan. 13—J. P. Morgan, I learn, walked down to the Manufacturers Trust Company headquarters and congratulated Harvey D. Gibson on becoming head of that institution.

That exclusive news has national importance.

The while financial world has been asking, "Who are associated with Mr. Gibson in taking over control of the Manufacturers Trust?"

What all particularly wanted to know was the attitude of the powers that be. The Morgan courtesy call gives an entirely satisfying answer.

B. C. Forbes.

It may interest the public to know that whenever anyone wants to see J. P. Morgan or any of the Morgan partners, the rule is to visit the Corner House, as the stately Morgan office at the corner of Wall and Broad sts., opposite the Stock Exchange, is called. Even the biggest of potentiates observe this etiquette.

For Mr. Morgan to call upon Mr. Gibson was a signal mark of friendship and approval. I don't believe Mr. Morgan has done such a thing half a dozen times in his life. I am told that when a Morgan partner, a personal friend, telephoned Mr. Gibson that Mr. Morgan was on his way, the new president of the Manufacturers' Trust replied, "Stop your kidding" or something to that effect.

The incident, apart from its significance in its relation to the banking situation, harmonizes with the mellowing process Mr. Morgan has gone through during recent years, notably since the death (in 1925) of his wife, from whom he was inseparable. The world's foremost banker has been a rather lonely human being since then. He has devoted less time to business and more time to the many other phases of life he finds joy in cultivating—friendships, yachting, art, quiet philanthropy, his children and grandchildren, etc. His intimates confide that Jack, as they call him, is intensely religious, but that he assiduously keeps his religion, as well as his philanthropy rightly in the background.

My information is that neither the House of Morgan nor any member thereof is directly affiliated with the purchase or control of the Manufacturers Trust but that the step was constructed by the Corner House as most helpful, timely, constructive, reassuring. Mr. Gibson's associates include several highly influential financial figures as well as men of wealth. It may be that they will not become directly identified with the realigning of the board of directors at the time. That they are of the "right kind" can be accepted unquestioningly.

Thus a situation which was causing uneasiness in high places because of the persistent withdrawal of deposits, has been happily eliminated. This is one reason why things have gone somewhat better in Wall Street since the turn of the year.

"In fifty years," President F. Edson White of Armour and Company pointed out to me, "the country has gone through fifteen depressions. We not only recovered from every one of them but we gained enough between times to make us the most powerful and prosperous people in the world.

"On the strength of the past we are warranted in looking forward hopefully now. It is true that industry is marking time and that price levels are remarkably low. But it is also true that the American people are normally great spenders, that inventories are getting very low, and that all we need to bring back prosperity is a resumption of normal buying.

"We should shun the blatant optimist and ignore the pessimist and proceed on the theory that what has happened in the past is the best indication of what will happen in the future."

Bond Market Has Narrow Movement

New York, Jan. 13—Listed bonds moved in narrowly irregular limits today, having competition from new issues amounting to approximately $70,000,000. The day's offering brought to more than $150,000,000 the total of bonds publicly marketed in four days.

The biggest piece of new financing was the $50,000,000 5 per cent gold debenture issue of the International Match Corporation in accordance with a plan of expansion in Poland, Germany and other European countries.

BOSTON IDEA IS EXPANDED BY CARRIERS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Complaint of the railroads regarding shipment of oil by pipe lines reminds us that such transportation is merely the expansion of an old Boston idea. Years ago Boston-listed American Pneumatic started conveying the mails in underground tubes to speed up its transportation through districts of congested traffic. The natural gas companies also picked up the idea and now a study is being made to see if wheat and other grains can be profitably transported through pipe lines. Powdered coal is similarly carried.

James Dean

James Dean, president of the Boston Stock Exchange, is among numerous New Englanders who are enjoying the attractions of Florida. Mr. Dean has held his seat on the Boston Stock Exchange for more than 25 years. The exchange ranks next to New York in the number of long-time members it has to boast.

Reports of increased stock frauds are to be taken with a grain of salt. Reputable dealers are still finding it hard to induce investors to buy even the best of securities at prices which it is generally agreed are "dirt cheap" for long pull holdings. How stock swindlers could thrive under such conditions is something to be explained.

When promoters of fraudulent issues are again free to go their way, many of their sales, as in the past, are sure to be consummated through institution of belief that the victim must buy without delay. Buying without delay means buying without proper investigation. Proper investigation would be sufficient to frustrate any fraud ever attempted in the securities markets.

With the announcement of the arrival of the steamship Elsbeth at the Morgan line at Portland, Me., loaded with 7,900 bales of cotton destined for the Pepperell Manufacturing Company, there is a new indication that the New England textile business is in a healthy condition.

This shipment arrives direct from Houston, Tex., the ship having been especially chartered to deliver it to Portland as quickly as possible. It was shipped by the American Cotton Co-operative Association.

This large delivery of fine grade cotton indicates that the textile industry is looking forward to a busy season. Because most of the cotton will be made into sheets and pillow cases, it is said that the reflection on the retail domestic trade of the country is most favorable.

Sheets and pillow cases are one of the most staple textile lines. When it is seen that textile mills are making substantial preparations to care for retail requirements there is an additional straw to show that the upturn is coming, if not already here.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Political wrangling at Washington, with increasing danger of an extension of the squabble into an extra hot-weather session, has been one of the unsettling factors in Wall Street. Lack of money is a handicap, funds again being available at 1 per cent in the outside market.

Oils Are Unsettled by Talk of Cutting

Rumblings of impending cuts in crude oil prices once again unsettled the oil stocks today, the list edging off to a new low on the move. At that Refining soon lost a point, and even Standard of New Jersey sold lower.

Rails Act Better on Small Offerings

Industrial reports and statements were practically unchanged, and the stock market was largely in the hands of the professionals, who were inclined to consider the downward move as the path of least present resistance in stocks. Rails gave a better account of themselves mainly for the reason that offerings of stock were small.

Radio-Keith Earns Over $1.50 a Share

Most of the session today Radio Keith-Orpheum was selling unchanged. Earnings for 1930 will probably be somewhat in excess of $1.50 a share on the approximately 2,378,000 shares of class A common stock at present outstanding. This would compare with 92 cents a share earned in 1929 on a much smaller number of shares, 1,858,210.

It is to be noted also that the 1929 earnings contained $625,035 profit on sale of investments, a non-recurring item, whereas in 1930 there was no extraordinary income of that nature. Without this the 1929 earnings would have been about 62 cents a share.

Earnings equivalent to $1.50 a share would spell net profits after depreciation, interest, taxes and preferred dividends of subsidiary companies, of around $3,567,000 which will contrast with $1,665,564, after similar charges in 1928, including the profit from sale of investments referred to. This gives a clearer idea of the expansion of the company last year.

While it was believed a few months ago that earnings for the year might approximate $1.70 a share on the class A stock, the final quarter, although quite satisfactory, probably contributed nearer 50 cents a share than 70 cents which was at one time believed a possible accomplishment in the first nine months of 1930. Earnings were equal to $1.04 a share based on 2,376,297 shares of class A outstanding Sept. 30.

Westinghouse Again in the Limelight

Westinghouse proved an exceptionally strong feature to break to a new low. The stock gained prestige during the hectic bull market days as one of the great bull issues and its current weakness therefore receives exaggerated importance in relation to the general market.

The fact is that Westinghouse probably failed in 1930 to earn its $5 dividend. There has been considerable short selling of this issue and it appeared today as if the greater part of the trading in the stock was for bear account, some selling while others covered. At least one powerful and heretofore influential bear ground covered a large portion of its short account in the stock. Investment demand of late, however, appears to be waiting evidence of a definite turn.

Dividend Earned for Gold Dust

It is understood that Gold Dust earnings for 1930 equalled about $3.50 a share, at least that is the statement of one of its dominant officials. The stock pays $2.50 a year.

Oils Unsettled by Texas Announcement

The entire oil section of the market was unsettled by official announcement by the Texas Corporation that its 1930 earnings equalled only $1.52 a share, against its $3 dividend requirement. Although official assurance was given of safety of the dividend for an indefinite time into the future, the admitted earnings and unsettled conditions in the industry obviously made stockholders nervous and the stock broke over four points.

This disappointment on the part of managements to prepare stockholders for disappointments in normal times may conceivably lessen the effects of the actual statements when they are issued. Even Texas Corporation's American Can revealed its earnings as probably over $4 a share, and it is understood that the American Chicle improved in 1930 upon its 1929 perhaps net of $4.23 a share.

Consolidated Gas Financing Rumors

Rumors of financing by Consolidated Gas have been persistent the past few weeks, despite the good financial and cash position of the company. Interests usually close to the company have had no information or official quarters on any such action and doubt the rumors.

American Agricultural Chemical New Stock

Houses identified with American Agricultural Chemical have been quietly picking up the stock of a new Delaware company. Ownership is now vested in a simple capitalization consisting of 317,875 shares of no-par common stock.

This issue represents an equity of $23,934,375, or $69 a share as of June 30, 1930, according to the pro forma balance sheet of the [illegible] Company, [illegible] is made that directors could declare dividends out of current earnings.

Approximately 80 per cent of the stock of the Connecticut company has been deposited for exchange into the Delaware organization. The basis is one share of Connecticut for one of Delaware. The exchange can be made until Feb. 3.

Wrigley Net Estimated at $6 a Share

Estimates in the financial district are that Wrigley will show an increase in net income for 1930 over the $11,800,000 reported for 1929, and that results are likely to be about $6 a share for the stock. Buying on reactions has been credited to interests in the company.

Lima Locomotive's 1930 Results

An unprecedented good showing was made by Lima Locomotive last year, due to the fact that the company made active deliveries in the last two months. Officials have placed the net at $6.86 a share. Unfilled orders at the beginning of 1931 were small, but it is believed the company will continue to get its share of the going business.

Great West. Pf. Bought on Reaction

Any further recession in price of Chicago & Great Western preferred will probably be met with the buying for the account of interests who are impressed with this road's long-term prospects.

INTERNATIONAL MATCH CORPORATION, incorporated 1923 in Delaware, controls companies owning 120 match manufacturing plants in various European and other countries. It is in turn controlled by Swedish Match Company through ownership of substantially all of its common stock. These two companies and their subsidiaries have more than 250 plants in 43 different countries and comprise by far the largest match manufacturing and distributing organization in the world.

An important part of the business is carried on under government-granted concessions for the exclusive right to manufacture and/or sell matches in various countries. Concessions of this character have been obtained in Danzig, Esthonia, Greece, Hungary, Jugoslavia, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Roumania and Turkey and several South American and other countries, and special agreements have been made with France and Germany. Acquisition of such concessions is facilitated by the companies' ability to offer financial assistance, in the form of loans, to the governments concerned.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE: The Corporation has recently concluded with the Republic of Poland an agreement (subject to ratification by parliament) for the purpose of broadening the terms of the concession granted in 1925 and extending its life 20 years, to 1965. As a consequence of the extension of the concession, International Match Corporation will make important new investments in the match industry and related industries of Poland. The Corporation also proposes to purchase certain German, Turkish and other Government Bonds incident to the acquisition of concessions in those countries. In Turkey new match factories are being established and in the match industry in Norway, Denmark, Portugal, Colombia and other countries new investments are being made and present holdings increased.

The proceeds of this issue will provide funds for the acquisition of these new assets and the further development of the Corporation's business.

ASSETS: Based on the December 31, 1929 consolidated balance sheet of International Match Corporation and constituent companies, total net assets, after deducting all liabilities other than funded debt and including the proceeds of this issue, amount to more than $240,000,000, or over 240% of total present funded debt of $98,241,000, including this issue.

EARNINGS: Consolidated net earnings of the Corporation and its constituent companies, after depreciation, available for interest, for the 4 years ended December 31, 1929 averaged $20,124,377, or 4.09 times the $4,912,050 annual interest requirement on total present funded debt including this issue. For the year 1929 alone, such net earnings were $24,135,266, or 4.91 times this requirement.

Except in isolated cases, the match industry has not suffered from the current general business depression and the consumption of matches during the past year has maintained practically the same rate of increase as in previous years. While final figures for the year are not yet available, results of operations indicate that net earnings of the Corporation for 1930 will be somewhat in excess of those for 1929.

Earnings comprise, chiefly, income from the manufacture and sale of matches and interest and profits on investments and advances made in connection with match concessions.

LEADERS SELL OFF IN NEW YORK MARKET

Expectation of publication of none too cheerful earnings statements for the final quarter of 1930 during the next few weeks, together with talk of further reductions in crude oil prices caused traders from endeavoring to extend the recovery.

APPEARS OVERSOLD

Stocks was not pressed anxiously for sale, and the list appeared momentarily oversold in the afternoon.

Utilities, steels, oils and rails were notably heavy.

American Telephone, Eastman, Vanadium, Byers, Coca Cola, American Tobacco, and Erie 1st preferred declined 2 to 3 points.

Republic Steel preferred, which has recently had a vigorous upturn, slipped off 8. Lackawanna dropped 5.

Shares selling off a point or so included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, North American, American Water Work, and some of the oils, including of New York and New Jersey and Texas Corp.

With the publication of another annual report by the head of a leading Wall Street bank—Charles E. Mitchell of the National City—it was evident that the first statement reports were in substantial agreement that the business depression had reached its approximate bottom.

SEES SLOW RECOVERY

It was also notable that Mr. Mitchell, along with Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase National and Paul M. Warburg of the Manhattan Company names to date at which business recovery may be expected, and indicates that the process will be slow.

The monthly copper statistics were regarded as one of the day's more encouraging exhibits. While stocks of both refined and blister copper in North and South America declined only slightly during December, the curtailment agreement reached by producers last autumn is evidently taking effect.

Consumption was at an extremely low level, but the amount of copper in process at the end of the month was the lowest in several years, or two a seasonal upturn in consumption should immediately set into the still large stocks of finished metal.

Credit rates still were on the downgrade, with bankers accepting tance rates for short terms quoted as low as 1¾-1⅞ per cent, off ⅛ and another new low for the market. Call money held at 1½ per cent at the loan desk, which is the lowest renewal rate since 1918.

INSURANCE CO. EXTRA ORDERED

Insurance Co. of North America declares extra dividend of 50 cents and regular semi-annual of $1, payable January 28 to stock of record January 21.

East Boston Savings Bank declared usual semi-annual dividend on deposits of 2½ per cent, payable Jan. 16.

Manning Bowman & Co. at Hartford, omitted quarterly dividend of 87½ centsson class A and 12½ cents on Class B stocks, to conserve assets. It says conditions look much brighter for 1931 and it is believed dividends will be resumed in the future.

Provident Institutions for Savings declared regular semi-annual dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. payable Jan. 15. Francis R. Gray was elected to the board of investment.

NEWS OF THE PORT OF BOSTON

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Political upheaval in Peru brought Norman Wilkins Dukeshire, 30, of Leominster, formerly assign in the Peru navy and radio instructor at the Peruvian Naval Academy, into the limelight as Coast Guard recruiting station at the Custom House to seek a berth as a radio operator, first class, in that service.

Dukeshire, armed with an honorable discharge from the United States Navy, came on the recommendation of the United States Navy Department at Washington to seek the post here.

Coast Guard authorities here were of the opinion that he would be immediately taken as that rating due to his knowledge of all branches of radio, but were awaiting instructions from Washington as to where he could be used to the best advantage.

Dukeshire told an interesting tale of getting the appointment as instructor at the Peruvian Military Academy at a salary of $900 a year. Ranked as an ensign he was one of the most privileged officers in the sea service of the country. Then came the political overturn and with it he was out of his good job.

STOOD BY

After standing by the four-masted schooner James C. Newsom, formerly Boston owned now under British registry, which was in distress while bound from Turks Island for Liverpool, N. S., the S. S. Westpool, Yankee Line, is expected to dock here today coming from Hamburg and Bremen. She is four days in the docks at Hoosac Tunnel docks.

FIRST 1931 TRIP

Many New Englanders are on the passenger list of the S. S. Europa, flagship of the North German Lloyd line, due here from Europe early today on the first 1931 eastbound crossing to Cherbourg, Southampton and Bremen. Commodore Nicolaus Johnsen, well known in Boston, is in command. Herbert F. Jenkins, vice-president of Little, Brown & Co., publishers, is en route to Europe, accompanied by Mrs Jenkins. Harry E. Noyes, president of the Noyes Marine Co.; Guy H Nasoe, export manager of the Hood Rubber Co.; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Baer of Boston, Elizabeth Choate of Southboro, John Goodhue of Boston, George C. Darry of Boston and Anna Pakstas of Worcester are other Massachusetts folks booked.

HEARING TOMORROW

Consideration of the proposal to restrict quarantine anchorage to President Roads, which anchorage grounds now stretches out a distance of two miles, will be made a public hearing before Col. Sherman A. Cheney, United States district engineer, at his office in the Custom House tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, medical officer in charge of quarantine, states that such a restriction would in great measure speed up the examination of vessels arriving in Boston from foreign ports

Uncle Sam Not a Come-On to Be Robbed by Foreign Nations and Gold-Brickers

Plain People Should Make This Known to International Bankers and Green-Goods Politicians

Time and again during the last three years the Hearst newspapers have warned the American people that the "one increasing purpose" of European nations and American international bankers was to make the United States pay the German indemnity to France.

In editorial after editorial it has been pointed out that if the trick could not be turned in one way it would be turned in another.

The original method was to pay France by selling the German indemnity bonds "to the investing public, principally the American investing public."

A new bank—called the Bank of International Settlement—was set up to issue these bonds. Controlling it are the same European nations that run the League of Nations and dominate the League Court.

These nations could not get the United States to become a direct member of the new bank, so they got a group of American international bankers to subscribe America's share in the bank and one of these bankers was put at the head of the bank.

When France had obtained her money, through the sale of these indemnity bonds, principally in the United States, the United States would be left holding the bag of German indemnity bonds.

Then when Germany found herself unable to pay these vast sums France would say to the United States:

"That is a matter for you to settle with Germany. We got our money when these bonds were sold to you sap Americans."

Under this scheme we would have lost our good American money and also incurred Germany's hatred if we tried to collect it. In other words, Germany's resentment against the European nations that conducted this scheme would have been shifted to the United States that fell for it.

Under this scheme France would have committed the offense of levying an unreasonable indemnity—one far beyond the capacity of Germany to pay. The American international bankers would have reaped their reward in the form of fat commissions for selling these securities. And we would have experienced the usual fate of a meddler and intermediary in a quarrel not his own.

We would have gotten no praise from France for having paid her racketeer demands upon Germany, but we would get the whole blame from Germany when we tried to collect the extortionate indemnity bonds.

France, therefore, must collect her own indemnity from Germany and France realizes that Germany cannot pay such large sums.

Now, in the face of this new situation, the foreign nations and the American international bankers devise another scheme to make the United States pay the indemnity that France demands from Germany.

Under this new scheme the United States is to be called on to forgive France her debts to us so that France can reduce Germany's indemnity without losing any blood money.

In other words, France is going to levy an assessment on the American people to make up for the money she cannot collect from Germany.

So you see, as the Hearst newspapers have pointed out time and again, Uncle Sam is always cast for the part of Uncle Easy-Mark, although these foreign nations still call him Uncle Shylock.

Shylock, however, was a money-lender; but Uncle Sam is always asked to be a money-giver, a sort of "Coal Oil Johnny," scattering his money with both hands until he is broke, while European nations and American international bankers pick up the money and laugh at him.

Let us ask ourselves before the new year is any older—does Uncle Sam really deserve to be considered such a financial idiot, as these foreign nations evidently think he is?

Certainly not as far as the American people are concerned. It is the American politicians and the American international bankers, who own a lot of politicians, who are to blame for the false impression about Uncle Sam that evidently exists abroad today. They are the ones who have tried to make our good Uncle Sam an international "come-on" for Europe and the laughing stock of the rest of the world.

It is about time that the plain people of the United States showed the gold-brick bankers and the green-goods politicians that Uncle Sam is not a come-on to be robbed by foreign nations or their expatriate American fiscal agents.

USE THAT SPARE -:- -:- -:-

By NELSON HARDING

This tour of nineteen thirty-one
That leads back to Prosperity,
Needs that saved spare to speed it on
And keep it moving rapidly.

When one flat tire slows you up,
Put on the spare without delay.
It is the wisest thing to do
If you would be upon your way.

Listen, World! -:- Advice

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Why Youth Scorns It

ARE YOU a worried father? A distressed mother? A distressed teacher? And are you wondering why the youngsters won't take your advice—why they're openly amused at your lectures?

Yes. Then look yourself over. You claim to know and practice the rules for right living.

BUT HOW CONVINCING ARE YOU, AS EXHIBIT A?

Remember, you, yourself—NOT a talkie—are your own main argument. People, particularly young people, aren't listening to what you say. They're looking at what you are. What ARE you?

Elsie Robinson

Walk to the nearest mirror. Look yourself over. Don't smirk. Don't pose. Don't look as you'd like to look. Look as you look—as the youngster sees you. How well do your sermons stack up in the face of that evidence? You claim to know what will keep people happy—what will make them brave and buoyant. Does YOUR face reflect happiness? Is it brave and buoyant?

"But I've had trouble," you say. "I've had to work too hard. People have been unkind to me. I lost my money. I've had shocks. People I loved died——"

Had trouble? Sure you have. So's everybody. So will these youngsters. And that's just the point—if rules are any good, they must work during trouble. They'll help you get the best of trouble—

Have YOUR rules helped YOU get the best of trouble? Have they kept doubt out of your mind and fear out of your heart? Have they preserved your enthusiasm and your eagerness, your fire and your friendliness?

IF THEY HAVEN'T, WHAT GOOD ARE YOUR RULES TO YOUTH?

Have YOUR rules helped you to live heroically? Is yours a triumphant face? Or is it a beaten face? A dejected, discouraged smear of features? A feeble, furtive scramble of flesh? Or, perchance, a complacent blob of fat?

Hard words but you might as well hear them—FOR THOSE ARE THE WORDS THAT MOST YOUNGSTERS THINK AS THEY LOOK AT MOST ADULTS.

"So that old fat-head's going to tell us how to live!" they say to themselves. "The nerve of him! Look him over! Ain't he the sweet eyeful, though! Lookit that faded eye, that flabby mouth—yet he thinks he knows what it's all about. Why, that old bird was licked before he even started.

"And Ma—poor old Ma—she's another. What does Ma know about life—the kind of life girls live now? Always talking about what a 'nice girl' should do. Well, she's been nice—and that's all she's been. If that's all niceness buys for you—not for me!

"Yet, just because they're older, they think they can teach the world. BUT WHAT DIFFERENCE DO YEARS MAKE IF YOU DON'T DO ANYTHING WITH THEM AFTER YOU GET THEM?"

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Languor of Times Sq. at 4 A. M.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—In active hours Times Square is a gushing fountain of scandal, intrigue and human pettiness. It is in perpetual boil, but at 4 a. m. in its first lap of sleep there is the icy indifference and the sullen languor of the ashen gray sky.

In an all-night sandwich parlor I just left, only a sprinkling remained. A few nodded at tables, food half eaten. A tipsy, sobbing girl whose face was smudged with mascara moaned: "A sweet jam you got me into. If I go home he'll kill me." One of those sure guys reading a racing form.

A newsie, eyes heavy with sleep, uncurls in a doorway, stretches and scuffles toward a subway kiosk for his supply of morning papers. A careening mail wagon screams across town. A lone diner sits in Lindy's.

Several stragglers drag out of an all night movie, coat collars pulled far down. They stand hesitatingly at gutters in the bracing air, shrug and move off nowhere. Stool and counter places have a customer or so hunched over thick coffee cups, drinking half-heartedly.

Suddenly Broadway stiffens. Floodgates are unloosed. There is the confusion of honking taxis, sirening trucks and a scurrying foam of faces. Save in the shady hotels where patrons sleep until dusk, all is vulgar display—the exhuberance of Sodom.

A new publicity man was sent to a dock to meet an incoming Russian actor, cast for a brawny role in the movies. He was told to send his description to newspapers and sent this:

"He weighs 287 pounds, stands six feet three in bare feet, neck 18 inches around and smells like a wolf."

The most distinguished mark of gentlemen's evening dress is the white bow tie. To aid this fashionable foible comes the new evening wing collar with the tabs cut out semi-circularly to make room for the knot. A sartorial "center door fancy," as it were.

Witty wights of Park avenue flapperdom now cry "Wood alcohol!" when saying farewell. Buck-toothed snappers were chirping that in Gallipolis yaws and yaws ago!

She is one of those exotic, beautiful flowers blooming in the Broadway muck. Her lovers have come from dignified mansions eastward, from the labyrinthine channels of Wall Street, from ducal palaces in the old world and where not with a precise but licentious unity. (All of which is very fancy, and I can recite On the Road to Mandalay, too.) But a few months ago she crossed with a Argentinian—a gigolo. He paid no attention to her on shipboard or in Paris. Instead of the usual intriguing little person, to him she became a pest. Her ardor was so purblind that she literally threw herself at his feet. But to no avail. The crowning insult came when in one of her tearful entreaties he sneered:

"You are too easily won. Even a gigolo likes resistance!"

I wonder if others, too, like to poke around those garishly lit delicatessen snops in New York. To me there is something fascinating about the odors—like the dry smell of musk or the perfume of mouldering spices in the East India Dock warehouses. Incidentally, Lafcadio Hearn is the only writer I know who has written entertainingly of the psychological drama of smells.

Pay That Bonus NOW!

Soldiers Need Their Funds Today

Massachusetts has an old-age pension law which ought to be termed a graveyard pension law.

It withholds its beneficent provisions until our infirm and dependent people have reached the age of seventy years.

It takes no account of the hardship and penury they may have suffered until they reach that age.

As a matter of fact, relatively few reach it, the vital statistics show.

They have been gathered to their final reward, having borne the trials and struggles of life without succor or relief, and there, no doubt, they look down upon us with commiseration or contempt as they contemplate man's inhumanity to man on this earth.

The national soldiers' bonus law is steeped in the same psychology of delay and in the same philosophy of wanton and bitter disregard of justice.

The soldiers' bonus is a debt. It was a niggardly and hesitating pretense of compensating our soldiers for the financial loss they sustained in being summoned away from their homes, trades and professions to serve in the army and navy and marine corps for $1 a day while the payroll patriots and war-contracting profiteers were making millions.

The national government, unhesitatingly and without delay, compensated the railroads and the war contractors. But it delayed the soldiers' compensation for years and then gave them certificates which would "pay in full" twenty years later.

The soldiers could not be trusted to handle this money (they might dissipate it or spend it with reckless prodigality)! Yet they could be trusted to give up their lives in the trenches; they could be trusted to save their country from possible destruction.

Many thousands of these men need that compensation NOW as in idleness they walk the streets in search of work and income that will abate the sufferings of their families.

And the government ought to pay it NOW because the time could not be more appropriate or auspicious.

It will be good for the men because it will ameliorate the anguish of family suffering.

It will be good for the government because it will abate much of the distrust that has resulted from its utter failure to redeem both its pre-war and its post-war pledges.

It will be good for the country as a whole because it will unleash a buying power which could dissipate the depression and restore economic confidence and certainty overnight.

A Sluggish Legislature

Taylor's Warning to Fellow Republicans

In a burst of candor, Chairman Amos L. Taylor of the Republican State Committee revealed the reasons why the Republican party has lost caste and suffered repeated reverses in this State.

The Legislature has been neither progressive nor constructive, he says.

It has idled along from year to year possessing neither the courage nor the initiative nor the independence to solve old-age pensions, the automobile insurance vexations, the Boston Elevated and the other problems of immediate, personal concern to the people.

What he says is indubitably true.

Nor can the Republican party, which yet controls the Legislature, revive its prestige and regain public confidence by yielding to Mr. Bacon's passionate desire to cripple the popular, direct primary law or by yielding to the political temptation to block Governor Ely's progressive and constructive program to restore business confidence and employment.

The Governor has set forth a humane and a sensible business proposal for $20,000,000 of public construction that would give the State the hospital and traffic facilities it very badly needs, that would take advantage of the low prices of building materials and that would put men to constructive, productive work.

If not from the humane, from the political viewpoint it would be better for the Republicans to adopt this valuable program and share with Governor Ely the congratulations of the public than to offend the public again by diminishing their right to nominate candidates of their own choosing.

The Signs Are Good

Thousands Returning to Work

The signs are good.

At Detroit, the auto people are taking on 75,000 workers.

The Osgood-Bradley Car Company at Worcester have new contracts which will guarantee full-time employment to 1000 men.

United Shoe Machinery Company transfers its Buffalo plant to Auburn, Me., and will engage 300 additional hands there.

Bad as the deflation and market crash may have been, the credit structure of the country remained firm.

Confidence has begun to replace fear again.

It is the time for businessmen to go ahead, and for faithful consumers to keep on buying in markets that never were more favorable.

Capital Silhouettes

MR. WILLIAM WRIGLEY announces that hereafter his company will accept wheat in exchange for its products. That ought to give Chairman Legge of the Farm Board something to chew on.

THE SENATE, in its 60-snaff-power limousine, dashes madly on toward the fourth of March. "A slow sort of country" remarked the Queen to Alice. "Now, here, you see, it takes all the running you can do to keep in the same place."
